Battle For Algiers Looms

JFK's Aides Would Relax A-Ban Terms

Justified By New Scientific Findings, Advisers Believe

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy's disarmament advisers were reported to have agreed Thursday that new scientific findings justify scaling down the safeguards proposed by the West for a nuclear test-ban treaty with the Soviet Union.

At the same time, informed sources said the Cabinet-level officials believe the United States should continue to insist on control posts and inspections inside the Soviet Union as part of any agreement to ban weapons tests.

The discussions of what the United States should do about its test-ban proposals took place at a closed session at the State Department.

Kennedy To Join Discussions

The discussions are to continue Friday with Kennedy taking part.

Informants said various potentially far-reaching modifications in the U.S. position were discussed Thursday, including possible use of detection stations outside of Soviet territory, and a ban which would cover atmospheric tests but not those underground.

However, no final decision was reached on these points, it was said.

The crux of the problem is whether it is possible to detect all nuclear explosions without conducting on-the-spot inspections.

Soviets Balk At On-Spot Checks

The Russians have declared they will not agree to test-ban policing inside their territory. The Western powers have insisted this would be necessary to prevent cheating, and informed sources said the disarmament advisers are not recommending abandonment of the proposed control posts inside the U.S.S.R. at this time.

But, these sources stated, new scientific information does show—in the opinion of the U.S. disarmament authorities—that the number of control posts and on-the-spot inspections could be decreased below previously proposed levels and still maintain a check against cheating.

The U.S. scientific data is expected to be presented soon to the 17-nation disarmament conference now meeting at Geneva.

Jetliner Dives, Avoids Crash

AMSTERDAM, Netherlands (AP)—A Pan American World Airways airliner with 86 persons aboard went into a sudden deep dive—"at least 1,000 feet," said one passenger—to avoid a head-on collision Thursday with a small Dutch military plane.

Flight Capt. James McGuiness, 53, of Manhasset, N.Y., brought the big Boeing 707 to a smooth landing here after apologizing to the 77 passengers.

"I dived down to avoid another plane," he said. "I am sorry this happened."

McGuiness, a pilot with 25 years experience, said he missed the single-engine Dutch plane by only 300 feet.

The airliner, flying from Duesselford, Germany, to New York via Amsterdam, carried mostly U.S. military personnel and their families, including many children.

The plunge sent the passengers and their luggage flying about inside the airliner in a wild whirlpool. Many passengers were bounced to the roof. One of the hostesses was carried unconscious from the plane on a stretcher.

Airport officials said 16 passengers, complaining of back pains, were taken to a hospital. Others received first aid treatment at the airport.

Brotherhoods Warn Cutback Means Strike

CHICAGO (UPI) — Five big railroad brotherhoods Thursday asked for a federal court injunction to bar the railroads from putting into effect Aug. 16 "anti-featherbedding" work rules changes that would wipe out the jobs of 13,000 firemen within a year.

The rail unions warned they would call for a nationwide rail strike if the railroads make a unilateral change in the industry rules under which some 200,000 engineers, conductors, firemen, trainmen and switchmen work.

There was no immediate comment from carrier bargaining teams which announced July 17 that the railroads would enforce—without union agreement — the sweeping recommendations of a presidential railroad commission for an overhaul of the work rules.

Violation Of Act Charged

The brotherhoods, in their suit filed before U. S. District Court Judge J. Sam Perry, sought a temporary injunction against the railroads' proposed action. They also asked for a court hearing and an eventual permanent injunction.

The brotherhood complaint charged that the railroads' announced intention to revise pay rates, rules and working conditions of the on-train employes next month constituted a violation of the Railway Labor Act.

It accused the railroads of attempting to impose binding arbitration upon the unions in certain controversies without brotherhood consent and of trying "to interfere with the employes of the carriers in their selection of collecting bargaining representatives . . ."

Talks Broken Off Twice

The railroads moved to put the presidential commission recommendations into effect unilaterally after twice breaking off negotiations with the unions on proposed work rules changes. They charged that the talks failed "because the unions have chosen propaganda over responsibility and procrastination over progress."

The presidential railroad commission called for eventual elimination of more than 40,000 firemen's jobs on diesel locomotives in freight and yard service. The railroads said 13,000 with less than 10 years' seniority would lose their jobs in the first year after new rules became effective.

Judge Orders County In Va. Open Schools

Public Classrooms In Prince Edward Closed Since 1959

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—A federal judge called on Prince Edward County, Va., on Thursday to reopen its public schools, which the county closed three years ago rather than accept racial integration in the classrooms.

U.S. Dist. Judge Oren R. Lewis directed the Prince Edward School Board to complete plans for the admission of students to the schools on a nonracial basis by Sept. 7.

The result of his order could be the beginning of the end of an 11-year fight in the rural southside Virginia agricultural county over the subject of school integration.

The decision was applauded by Negro leaders. There was no specific word from state or county officials on what their next move would be. Presumably, they will seek an appeal.

State Officials Confer

Gov. Albertis S. Harrison Jr. went into an immediate conference with Virginia Atty. Gen. Robert Y. Button and two other top legal officials. He said he would have nothing to say until he had studied the opinion and conferred with other attorneys in the case.

Judge Lewis said it would not be necessary to enter a more formal court order if the Prince Edward schools are reopened and maintained in accordance with a previous order of his court.

The county's 1,700 school-age Negro children have had virtually no formal education since 1959 when the Prince Edward Board of Supervisors cut off all operating funds and the schools closed.

Whites Attend Private Schools

The 1,400 white children have been attending private segregated schools, financed for a time by public money until Lewis banned use of such tax funds.

If the schools aren't reopened by Sept. 7, Lewis said he would consider any and all proposed orders offered by attorneys in the racial dispute.

Prince Edward was one of the original five cases ruled on by the U.S. Supreme Court in its historic 1954 school desegregation case. The schools closed in 1959, and the case has remained before the courts in one form or another.

Ben Bella's Forces Head For Capital

Dissident Chief's Aide Says He Will Enter City Today

ALGIERS, Algeria (AP) — Troops of insurgent Deputy Premier Ahmed Ben Bella were reported preparing Thursday night to push into this fortified capital city and clear the way for a new government. Bloody fighting could result.

Mohammed Khider, Ben Bella's lieutenant, announced he would be in Algiers on Friday to start the wheels of government turning.

Troops backing the wobbly central government of Premier Ben Youssef Ben Khedda manned all approaches to the city. Thousands more were holed up in the Kabylie Mountains east of this seaport, and their leaders called for widespread resistance to Ben Bella.

Ben Khedda Calm

By contrast, Ben Khedda—left almost alone in the rambling government building — presented a calm front. He and his armaments minister, Abdelhafid Boussouf, expressed confidence that "everything will be arranged."

After a brief absence, Boussouf rejoined Ben Khedda in the capital and told newsmen: "The crisis will soon be over."

At the same time, State Minister Lakhdar Ben Tobbal—released during the day by Ben Bella's followers at the eastern Algerian city of Constantine—landed in Algiers.

Two vice premiers loyal to Ben Khedda toured the Kabylie area and addressed a mass rally in the Mediterranean port of Bougie. They are Belkacem Krim and Mohammed Boudiaf, who have vowed to fight Ben Bella "to the last drop of our blood."

Exodus Continues

But outside of roadblocks topped by machine guns, there were no signs of military activity around the Kabylie capital of Tizi Ouzou.

In the western Algerian capital of Oran, Khider said steps would eventually be taken against Krim and Boudiaf. He described their appeal for resistance as "a call for murder, a reaction of despair and of a lost cause."

More thousands of Europeans who had lived through the months of terror preceding independence were leaving Algiers as further chaos loomed.

President Charles de Gaulle's French government watched the situation closely. But government sources in Paris said the 400,000 men of the French armed forces still in Algeria would intervene only to protect any Frenchmen who were endangered.

Senators Urge School Prayer Ban Be Nullified

WASHINGTON (AP) — Several senators urged Thursday that Congress act to overcome last month's Supreme Court decision which held that officially prescribed prayers in the public schools are unconstitutional.

"Unless something is done to counter this unfortunate decision," said Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., "we will have blown out a light by which we have found our way."

Stennis was the first of a group of senators who appeared as witnesses at the start of hearings by the Senate Judiciary Committee on a variety of proposals, including constitutional amendments, to nullify the ruling.

Stennis expressed fear that the decision was just a forerunner of things to come and Sen. Strom Thurmond, D-S.C., said the ruling if carried to "its illogical conclusion" could result eventually in wiping out every official recognition of the Divine Being.

Sen. J. Glenn Beall, R-Md., spoke in favor of a constitutional amendment he is sponsoring with 14 other senators. Beall's amendment, introduced two days after the June 25 Supreme Court ruling, states that nothing in the Constitution should be construed to prohibit public schools from providing for voluntary participation in nonsectarian prayers.

Churchill 'Quite Well'

LONDON (AP) — Sir Winston Churchill was reported Thursday by his wife to be quite well. She visited him for an hour but said afterward she had no idea when he might be leaving Middlesex Hospital. Sir Winston, 87, has been in the hospital since June 29, the day after he broke his leg in a fall in his hotel in Monte Carlo.

Telstar Links Sister Cities

HAGERSTOWN (AP) — The mayors of Hagerstown and Wesel, Germany—sister cities under an international relations program—conversed in German Thursday night during a brief telephone call relayed by Telstar, the United States' communications satellite.

"We are very pleased over the opportunity to speak, with the help of the American satellite Telstar, to our sister city Wesel, particularly since we will shortly . . . be celebrating the 10th anniversary of our cities' friendship."

Kraeker congratulated Hagerstwon on the 200th anniversary of its founding, which also is being celebrated this year.

Abortion Ruling Expected Today

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—A pretty mother of four may learn Friday whether she can abort legally her fifth pregnancy.

Authorities promised to expedite a hearing on the plea of Mrs. Robert Finkbine, 29-year-old Phoenix television star, for a judgment allowing her to prevent birth of a child she fears may be deformed.

Mrs. Finkbine, known to thousands of Phoenix-area youngsters as Miss Sherri, the teacher of a children's television program, took tranquilizers containing thalidomide. Later, she learned the drug is being blamed in Europe for thousands of births in which the babies have no limbs.

In the suit, she is asking that the court declare her in danger of dying unless an abortion is performed. This is the only condition under which Arizona law permits abortion.

Pravda Refuses To Reciprocate

WINNIPEG, Man. (AP) — The Soviet Embassy in Ottawa paid the Winnipeg Free Press $2,800 to publish a recent speech by Soviet Premier Khrushchev in the form of an advertisement.

To an offer of the same amount for an advertisement in Pravda replying to the Khrushchev world peace congress speech in Moscow, the party paper replied curtly by cable Wednesday that it never accepts advertising of any sort.

The Free Press was one of a number of North American newspapers which accepted the Soviet offer to publish the Khrushchev text as an advertisement.

India Plans To Buy, Manufacture MIGs

NEW DELHI, India (AP)—Prime Minister Nehru has decided to push ahead with a plan to buy and manufacture Soviet MIG fighters in India despite efforts of the United States and Britain to steer him off the deal, authoritative sources said Thursday.

A team of Indian experts will go to Moscow next month to open formal negotiations on the technical and financial aspects of the Soviet offer that has been hanging fire for months. Informants said their report would be studied by the Cabinet at the highest level before the agreement is signed.

The plan calls for the possible purchase of two squadrons of Soviet jets and setting up a plan to build more in India.

Money Bill Signed

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy has signed a catch-all supplemental appropriation bill providing $373,550,689 in new funds for miscellaneous federal agencies.

Defense Funds, Peacetime High, Voted By House

WASHINGTON (AP)—The biggest peacetime defense money bill in history was passed Thursday by the House, carrying in it some funds and provisions opposed by the administration.

Expected passage by the Senate was delayed when that chamber adjourned early. The Senate is expected to act Friday on the $48,136,247,000 appropriation bill designed to pay, arm and operate the nation's military forces in the fiscal year that began July 1.

Approved in the House by a voice vote, the measure would give President Kennedy some $299 million more than he and Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara requested.

Most of the extra funds were earmarked to push development of the supersonic reconnaissance strike bomber, the RS70.

Kennedy and his Pentagon chief had asked for only $171 million for this project, or enough to provide for three of the experimental aircraft and their arms systems including radar, missiles and other gear.

A Senate-House conference committee, ironing out differences in the bill as passed originally by the two chambers, agreed on the addition of $191 million, for a total of $362.6 million, which would provide for six of the experimental craft designated originally as the B70 bomber.

Also provided in the bill is a mandatory directive to the Defense Department to maintain the National Guard at a year-end strength of 400,000 men and the Army Reserves at 300,000.

Previously, McNamara had stirred up a storm of protest from governors and congressmen by announcing plans to pare down the two civilian soldier components to 642,000.

Missile Blowup To Delay A-Tests

HONOLULU (UPI) — An accidental fire and intentional destruction of a Thor missile and its nuclear device on the Johnston Island launching pad caused so much damage that testing may be ended for this year, informed sources in Honolulu said Thursday night.

The huge missile burst into flames Wednesday night just before it was to be launched for a high altitude test explosion. Scientists deliberately blew it up along with its nuclear payload.

It was the third deliberate destruction in the trouble-plagued program at Johnston and there were indications the strain had become overwhelming for certain key technicians.

Test Vote Won By Macmillan

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Harold Macmillan won an overwhelming vote of confidence in the House of Commons on Thursday night. His ruling Conservative party rallied behind him to defeat a Labor opposition censure motion 351-253.

It was his first major test since he recently made a dramatic overhaul of the Conservative Cabinet membership.

Macmillan told the House he had no intention of calling for new national elections now as demanded by the Labor party.

"Before we do that," he declared, "we have a lot to do and we mean to do it."

Macmillan was defending his government against a motion that would have required him to resign and ask Queen Elizabeth II to dissolve Parliament.

Red Agent Set Off Wall Blasts

BERLIN (AP)—Franz Amrehn, acting mayor of West Berlin, announced Thursday that a self-confessed Communist agent has admitted setting off two explosions on the Berlin wall.

Amrehn said a mechanic, identified only as Ruediger K., 20, acknowledged to police he was an agent in West Berlin of the East German security service. He admitted setting off one explosion on the wall Saturday night and another late Wednesday night, Amrehn said.

The Red regime has been making much of such explosions, claiming they were aggression against its national border. The Communists said such provocative activity showed it was high time Western troops got out of West Berlin so it could be neutralized.

How Round Is The Moon? Eclipse May Give Answer

BURBANK, Calif. (AP)—A U.S.-British astronomer team has set up camp and cameras in West Africa to wait for something to happen next Tuesday that should tell them how round is the moon.

If it doesn't rain.

About 11:45 a.m. Tuesday, Senegal, Africa time, the moon will slide across the face of the sun, totally eclipsing it.

Dr. Laurence Stoddard, selenologist (moon expert) at Lockheed-California Co., hopes to get the first good pictures of the moon silhouetted against the sun and thus be able to trace its actual shape.

Astronomers have never been able to determine the exact shape of the moon because, even at the full phase, a tiny part of it is always in the earth's shadow.

Tuesday, with the sun behind the moon, every peak and valley on the lunar rim, as well as the general contour, should be captured on finer grain film than ever used before for this purpose.

The only hitch is the imminence of the rainy season.

Dr. Stoddard recently wrote that both he and James Hallows of Britain's University of Manchester, who is engaged in an Air Force lunar mapping project, had reached the site 125 miles southeast of Kadar and set up their cameras.

Then he added: "There is a 50-50 chance rain clouds may obscure the eclipse."

The entire eclipse will be visible only along a 100-mile wide belt extending from Brazil to Madagascar. Both Stoddard and a group of Soviet astronomers, who set up a base 400 miles east, picked Africa as the best site.

N.C. Republican Leader, Double Family Life Exposed, Faces Situation Calmly

WILLIAM E. COBB . . . admits double life.

MORGANTON, N.C. (AP) — William E. Cobb stood calmly amidst the wreckage of his scattered political life Thursday and admitted it is not possible to maintain a double family life.

Cobb, 40, boyish chairman of the North Carolina Republican party and a candidate for the State Senate, revealed Wednesday night that for more than two years he has maintained two homes: one here with his blonde, attractive wife of 19 years, and their 3-year-old adopted son; the other in Roanoke, Va., where he said he has lived with a mysterious woman he identified only as Linda, and two children born of their relationship.

The two women involved went into seclusion. Rebecca Summers, Cobb's secretary, said Mrs. Cobb was "terribly upset, but was taking it like a real trooper." Mrs. Summers said Cobb's wife has decided to stick by him.

Meanwhile, in Roanoke, where Cobb maintained a home under the name of W. Edward Cobb, the woman with whom he said he lived there remained beseiged in their small but stylish home. Outside, reporters and photographers clamored for pictures and some clue to her identity.

Cobb was elected state GOP chairman four years ago. He served in the State Senate, but had to give up the post under a rotation agreement. He said Thursday he will resign the chairmanship when the state executive committee meets in New Bern on Aug. 4. He said he also will withdraw from the Senate race.

A picture of Cobb which appeared last week in a national magazine led to his discovery.

Talkfest Snags Satellite Bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate liberals Thursday pyramided a series of parliamentary delaying tactics into a filibuster-type stumbling block against a vote on the administration's "give-away" communications satellite bill.

Led by Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., the liberals forced the Senate to recess consideration of the bill until Friday morning. At that time, Morse could resume his talkathon.

Morse said he was fighting the satellite bill "because this bill ought to be a matter of discussion in the campaigns this fall."

"Once the people understand the facts, they'll support the proper course of action," Morse said.

Under terms of the legislation, a privately-owned government-regulated company would be set up to run satellite communications private industry.

Investors Offered Treasury Securities

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Treasury announced Thursday its first major borrowing of the new fiscal year—an $8.75-billion securities offering for cash.

The financing will cover the retirement of about $7.5 billion of securities maturing on Aug. 15, and provide up to $1.25 billion of new money to meet government needs until late September.

Three types of securities are being offered investors, including a $750 million issue of 25- to 30-year bonds carrying 4¼ per cent interest—this administration's first venture into the long-term securities market with a cash offering.

"Unless something is done to counter this unfortunate decision," said Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., "we will have blown out a light by which we have found our way."

Stennis was the first of a group of senators who appeared as witnesses at the start of hearings by the Senate Judiciary Committee on a variety of proposals, including constitutional amendments, to nullify the ruling.

Stennis expressed fear that the decision was just a forerunner of things to come and Sen. Strom Thurmond, D-S.C., said the ruling if carried to "its illogical conclusion" could result eventually in wiping out every official recognition of the Divine Being.

Sen. J. Glenn Beall, R-Md., spoke in favor of a constitutional amendment he is sponsoring with 14 other senators. Beall's amendment, introduced two days after the June 25 Supreme Court ruling, states that nothing in the Constitution should be construed to prohibit public schools from providing for voluntary participation in nonsectarian prayers.

Churchill 'Quite Well'

LONDON (AP) — Sir Winston Churchill was reported Thursday by his wife to be quite well. She visited him for an hour but said afterward she had no idea when he might be leaving Middlesex Hospital. Sir Winston, 87, has been in the hospital since June 29, the day after he broke his leg in a fall in his hotel in Monte Carlo.

Telstar Links Sister Cities

HAGERSTOWN (AP) — The mayors of Hagerstown and Wesel, Germany—sister cities under an international relations program—conversed in German Thursday night during a brief telephone call relayed by Telstar, the United States' communications satellite.

Mayor Winslow Burhans told the mayor of Wesel, Kurt Kraeker:

"We are very pleased over the opportunity to speak, with the help of the American satellite Telstar, to our sister city Wesel, particularly since we will shortly . . . be celebrating the 10th anniversary of our cities' friendship."

Kraeker congratulated Hagerstwon on the 200th anniversary of its founding, which also is being celebrated this year.

Abortion Ruling Expected Today

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—A pretty mother of four may learn Friday whether she can abort legally her fifth pregnancy.

Authorities promised to expedite a hearing on the plea of Mrs. Robert Finkbine, 29-year-old Phoenix television star, for a judgment allowing her to prevent birth of a child she fears may be deformed.

Mrs. Finkbine, known to thousands of Phoenix-area youngsters as Miss Sherri, the teacher of a children's television program, took tranquilizers containing thalidomide. Later, she learned the drug is being blamed in Europe for thousands of births in which the babies have no limbs.

In the suit, she is asking that the court declare her in danger of dying unless an abortion is performed. This is the only condition under which Arizona law permits abortion.

Pravda Refuses To Reciprocate

WINNIPEG, Man. (AP) — The Soviet Embassy in Ottawa paid the Winnipeg Free Press $2,800 to publish a recent speech by Soviet Premier Khrushchev in the form of an advertisement.

To an offer of the same amount for an advertisement in Pravda replying to the Khrushchev world peace congress speech in Moscow, the party paper replied curtly by cable Wednesday that it never accepts advertising of any sort.

The Free Press was one of a number of North American newspapers which accepted the Soviet offer to publish the Khrushchev text as an advertisement.

India Plans To Buy, Manufacture MIGs

NEW DELHI, India (AP)—Prime Minister Nehru has decided to push ahead with a plan to buy and manufacture Soviet MIG fighters in India despite efforts of the United States and Britain to steer him off the deal, authoritative sources said Thursday.

A team of Indian experts will go to Moscow next month to open formal negotiations on the technical and financial aspects of the Soviet offer that has been hanging fire for months. Informants said their report would be studied by the Cabinet at the highest level before the agreement is signed.

The plan calls for the possible purchase of two squadrons of Soviet jets and setting up a plan to build more in India.

Money Bill Signed

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy has signed a catch-all supplemental appropriation bill providing $373,550,689 in new funds for miscellaneous federal agencies.

Red Agent Set Off Wall Blasts

BERLIN (AP)—Franz Amrehn, acting mayor of West Berlin, announced Thursday that a self-confessed Communist agent has admitted setting off two explosions on the Berlin wall.

Amrehn said a mechanic, identified only as Ruediger K., 20, acknowledged to police he was an agent in West Berlin of the East German security service. He admitted setting off one explosion on the wall Saturday night and another late Wednesday night, Amrehn said.

The Red regime has been making much of such explosions, claiming they were aggression against its national border. The Communists said such provocative activity showed it was high time Western troops got out of West Berlin so it could be neutralized.

Defense Funds, Peacetime High, Voted By House

WASHINGTON (AP)—The biggest peacetime defense money bill in history was passed Thursday by the House, carrying in it some funds and provisions opposed by the administration.

Expected passage by the Senate was delayed when that chamber adjourned early. The Senate is expected to act Friday on the $48,136,247,000 appropriation bill designed to pay, arm and operate the nation's military forces in the fiscal year that began July 1.

Approved in the House by a voice vote, the measure would give President Kennedy some $299 million more than he and Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara requested.

Most of the extra funds were earmarked to push development of the supersonic reconnaissance strike bomber, the RS70.

Kennedy and his Pentagon chief had asked for only $171 million for this project, or enough to provide for three of the experimental aircraft and their arms systems including radar, missiles and other gear.

A Senate-House conference committee, ironing out differences in the bill as passed originally by the two chambers, agreed on the addition of $191 million, for a total of $362.6 million, which would provide for six of the experimental craft designated originally as the B70 bomber.

Also provided in the bill is a mandatory directive to the Defense Department to maintain the National Guard at a year-end strength of 400,000 men and the Army Reserves at 300,000.

Previously, McNamara had stirred up a storm of protest from governors and congressmen by announcing plans to pare down the two civilian soldier components to 642,000.

Missile Blowup To Delay A-Tests

HONOLULU (UPI) — An accidental fire and intentional destruction of a Thor missile and its nuclear device on the Johnston Island launching pad caused so much damage that testing may be ended for this year, informed sources in Honolulu said Thursday night.

The huge missile burst into flames Wednesday night just before it was to be launched for a high altitude test explosion. Scientists deliberately blew it up along with its nuclear payload.

It was the third deliberate destruction in the trouble-plagued program at Johnston and there were indications the strain had become overwhelming for certain key technicians.

Test Vote Won By Macmillan

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Harold Macmillan won an overwhelming vote of confidence in the House of Commons on Thursday night. His ruling Conservative party rallied behind him to defeat a Labor opposition censure motion 351-253.

It was his first major test since he recently made a dramatic overhaul of the Conservative Cabinet membership.

Macmillan told the House he had no intention of calling for new national elections now as demanded by the Labor party.

"Before we do that," he declared, "we have a lot to do and we mean to do it."

Macmillan was defending his government against a motion that would have required him to resign and ask Queen Elizabeth II to dissolve Parliament.

Talkfest Snags Satellite Bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate liberals Thursday pyramided a series of parliamentary delaying tactics into a filibuster-type stumbling block against a vote on the administration's "give-away" communications satellite bill.

Led by Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., the liberals forced the Senate to recess consideration of the bill until Friday morning. At that time, Morse could resume his talkathon.

Morse said he was fighting the satellite bill "because this bill ought to be a matter of discussion in the campaigns this fall."

"Once the people understand the facts, they'll support the proper course of action," Morse said.

Under terms of the legislation, a privately-owned government-regulated company would be set up to run satellite communications private industry.

How Round Is The Moon? Eclipse May Give Answer

BURBANK, Calif. (AP)—A U.S.-British astronomer team has set up camp and cameras in West Africa to wait for something to happen next Tuesday that should tell them how round is the moon.

If it doesn't rain.

About 11:45 a.m. Tuesday, Senegal, Africa time, the moon will slide across the face of the sun, totally eclipsing it.

Dr. Laurence Stoddard, selenologist (moon expert) at Lockheed-California Co., hopes to get the first good pictures of the moon silhouetted against the sun and thus be able to trace its actual shape.

Astronomers have never been able to determine the exact shape of the moon because, even at the full phase, a tiny part of it is always in the earth's shadow.

Tuesday, with the sun behind the moon, every peak and valley on the lunar rim, as well as the general contour, should be captured on finer grain film than ever used before for this purpose.

The only hitch is the imminence of the rainy season.

Dr. Stoddard recently wrote that both he and James Hallows of Britain's University of Manchester, who is engaged in an Air Force lunar mapping project, had reached the site 125 miles southeast of Kadar and set up their cameras.

Then he added: "There is a 50-50 chance rain clouds may obscure the eclipse."

The entire eclipse will be visible only along a 100-mile wide belt extending from Brazil to Madagascar. Both Stoddard and a group of Soviet astronomers, who set up a base 400 miles east, picked Africa as the best site.

N.C. Republican Leader, Double Family Life Exposed, Faces Situation Calmly

WILLIAM E. COBB . . . admits double life.

MORGANTON, N.C. (AP) — William E. Cobb stood calmly amidst the wreckage of his scattered political life Thursday and admitted it is not possible to maintain a double family life.

Cobb, 40, boyish chairman of the North Carolina Republican party and a candidate for the State Senate, revealed Wednesday night that for more than two years he has maintained two homes: one here with his blonde, attractive wife of 19 years, and their 3-year-old adopted son; the other in Roanoke, Va., where he said he has lived with a mysterious woman he identified only as Linda, and two children born of their relationship.

The two women involved went into seclusion. Rebecca Summers, Cobb's secretary, said Mrs. Cobb was "terribly upset, but was taking it like a real trooper." Mrs. Summers said Cobb's wife has decided to stick by him.

Meanwhile, in Roanoke, where Cobb maintained a home under the name of W. Edward Cobb, the woman with whom he said he lived there remained beseiged in their small but stylish home. Outside, reporters and photographers clamored for pictures and some clue to her identity.

Cobb was elected state GOP chairman four years ago. He served in the State Senate, but had to give up the post under a rotation agreement. He said Thursday he will resign the chairmanship when the state executive committee meets in New Bern on Aug. 4. He said he also will withdraw from the Senate race.

A picture of Cobb which appeared last week in a national magazine led to his discovery.

Investors Offered Treasury Securities

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Treasury announced Thursday its first major borrowing of the new fiscal year—an $8.75-billion securities offering for cash.

The financing will cover the retirement of about $7.5 billion of securities maturing on Aug. 15, and provide up to $1.25 billion of new money to meet government needs until late September.

Three types of securities are being offered investors, including a $750 million issue of 25- to 30-year bonds carrying 4¼ per cent interest—this administration's first venture into the long-term securities market with a cash offering.

Estes 'Penalized' In 1958

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senators were told Thursday that Billie Sol Estes cut the legal corners on cotton-acreage allotments as long ago as 1958—and got by with nothing beyond an official slap on the wrist.

The Senate Investigations subcommittee heard that account of the farmer-financier's early cotton manipulation while House probers listened to more explanations of Agriculture Department slowness in digging into the Texas promoter's maneuverings.

Ruth Minear, manager of the Pecos County office in Texas for the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, gave this account of the 1958-59 incident.

Frank Estes obtained for his brother an allotment of 402 acres for planting cotton on the claim that the property involved included 1,700 acres of arable land. The state office approved the allotment, after trimming it to 388 acres.

It was discovered later that the property had only 630 tillable acres and thus should have had a much lower allotment. Another farmer complained about the Estes acreage and Mrs. Minear took it up with her county committee—but it then was too late to do anything about the 1958 planting.

The committee, by way of penalty, reduced Estes' 1959 allotment by 22 per cent while other Pecos County farmers were cut only 5 per cent.

The late Gen. John J. Pershing, General of the Armies in the U.S. Army, was authorized to prescribe his own insignia, but he never wore in excess of four stars.

British Court, Israel Reject Soblen's Pleas

LONDON (AP)—Israel's Interior Ministry and Britain's Court of Appeal dealt successive blows Thursday to hopes of Robert A. Soblen for refuge abroad from the life sentence that awaits him in the United States.

It was another losing round—but not necessarily the last one—in the 61-year-old Jewish psychiatrist's fight to escape return to New York and imprisonment as a convicted spy for the Soviet Union.

The British Court of Appeal rejected Soblen's plea that he be freed from custody of the British Home Office.

That followed refusal by the Israeli Interior Ministry in Jerusalem of Soblen's application for admission to Israel under the 1952 Law of Return. The law requires Israel to give a home to most Jews, although it excludes those convicted of certain crimes.

The ministry ruling was reported approved unanimously by Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion's Cabinet. It was challenged, however, by Soblen's Israeli lawyer, Ari Ankorion, and the Cabinet plans to review the case again Sunday.

Soblen could ask the House of Lords, Britain's highest law tribunal, to review the Appeal Court decision.

If the lords refused, the Lithuanian-born doctor who reportedly has leukemia—cancer of the blood—could press a petition pending before Home Secretary Henry Brooke for political asylum in Britain. The Home Office has declined to discuss this petition while the case remained before the courts.

Castro Charges U.S. Still Plots Invasion

SANTIAGO, Cuba (UPI) —Premier Fidel Castro said Thursday the United States was determined to launch an attack against Cuba and announced to thousands of workers that rationing will be extended from food to shoes and clothing.

"Mr. Kennedy is set on launching an attack against our country," he told thousands of Cubans jammed into Santiago for ninth anniversary celebrations of the founding of his erstwhile 26th of July movement. Castro said the United States has refused flatly to give the Cuban government assurances "with respect to plans that concern our country."

BOSTON (AP)—Nomination papers were filed Thursday for House Speaker John W. McCormack of Massachusetts, running for his 18th term as a Democrat in the House of Representatives.

Blind Children Tour Annapolis

The youngsters, members of the foundation of the Junior Blind of Los Angeles, visited, among other things, the old Senate chamber in the Statehouse where George Washington resigned his commission from the Continental Army and where the Treaty of Paris was ratified.

The teenagers sat at desks, some of them dating back to the Revolutionary War, and ran their fingers across the wood.

Nancy Lackey, 15, of Chino, Calif., stood on the plaque marking the spot where Washington resigned his commission and said:

"He surely would have had a miserable time if he wore high heels."

The spiked heels on her own shoes were caught between the upraised letters on the plaque.

Splash" is the English way of saying "soda water." Mixing it with Gordon's Gin is a popular pastime on the other side of the Atlantic. Most Americans prefer "tonic and ice" as a mixer. But on the choice of gin—complete accord. Gordon's. Its distinctive dryness and flavour seem to tip the balance. You'll find these qualities wherever you call for Gordon's by name; for every bottle is still based on Alexander Gordon's original 1769 formula. Could this be why Gordon's is the biggest-selling gin in England, America, the world?

Doctors Explode Belief Carrot Juice Helps Vision

By The Associated Press

Carrots And Vision

Don't believe it if someone tells you that drinking carrot juice will improve vision, two physicians warn.

They tell of seeing three people who had turned yellowish-orange in skin color from drinking excessive amounts of the juice—they had been downing a pint to two quarts a day.

The discoloration disappears if the juice drinking is stopped.

Of all the folklore remedies for poor eyesight, "drinking carrot juice is probably the most useless," write Drs. Ira A. Abrahamson, Sr. and Ira A. Abrahamson, Jr., of Cincinnati.

Glamor And Sports

Tennis, swimming and volleyball interfere with maintaining one's coiffure and makeup. So, he says, many a pretty girl is physically weaker at 16 than she was at 8.

Swimming Pool Hazard

Those germ-killing chemicals used for backyard swimming pools must be handled with care, and especially kept out of children's reach.

The chemicals are usually sold in highly concentrated form—since they will be diluted—and in full strength may be poisonous or irritating. Connecticut's Poison Information Center cautions.

Cirrhosis And Alcohol

Instead, he finds that only a minority of alcoholics get cirrhosis, and it doesn't differ from the cirrhosis occurring in non-drinkers. Yet it is true that more persons having cirrhosis are alcoholics, he says.

The understanding of liver disease had been based largely on animal experiments which may be misleading, he says. "Some people, either because of genetic reasons or because of an acquired disease, may have a weekness for cirrhosis which alcohol may bring out. Nevertheless, there are people who can have exactly the same cirrhosis."

Doctors Explode Belief Carrot Juice Helps Vision

By The Associated Press

Carrots And Vision

Don't believe it if someone tells you that drinking carrot juice will improve vision, two physicians warn.

They tell of seeing three people who had turned yellowish-orange in skin color from drinking excessive amounts of the juice—they had been downing a pint to two quarts a day.

The discoloration disappears if the juice drinking is stopped.

Of all the folklore remedies for poor eyesight, "drinking carrot juice is probably the most useless," write Drs. Ira A. Abrahamson, Sr. and Ira A. Abrahamson, Jr., of Cincinnati.

Glamor And Sports

Tennis, swimming and volleyball interfere with maintaining one's coiffure and makeup. So, he says, many a pretty girl is physically weaker at 16 than she was at 8.

Swimming Pool Hazard

Those germ-killing chemicals used for backyard swimming pools must be handled with care, and especially kept out of children's reach.

The chemicals are usually sold in highly concentrated form—since they will be diluted—and in full strength may be poisonous or irritating. Connecticut's Poison Information Center cautions.

Cirrhosis And Alcohol

Instead, he finds that only a minority of alcoholics get cirrhosis, and it doesn't differ from the cirrhosis occurring in non-drinkers. Yet it is true that more persons having cirrhosis are alcoholics, he says.

The understanding of liver disease had been based largely on animal experiments which may be misleading, he says. "Some people who have never taken a drink can have exactly the same disease, may have a weekness for cirrhosis which alcohol may bring out. Nevertheless, there are people, either because of genetic reasons or because of an acquired cirrhosis."

Beall Says Rights Of School Prayer Advocates Must Be Respected

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. J. Glenn Beall, R-Md., said Thursday his proposed constitutional amendment to allow voluntary nonsectarian prayers in public schools "could well ward off future court incursions into our religious freedoms."

Beall's remarks were made at the opening of hearings by the Senate Judiciary Committee on measures prompted by the Supreme Court ruling June 25 that official prayers in the public schools are unconstitutional.

Beall said he agreed with Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas' view that "the atheist, or agnostic — the nonbeliever — is entitled to go his own way."

But, Beall added, "We must also realize, though, that believers — who are clearly in the majority — are entitled to go their own way too . . ."

"If their way includes the desire for an opportunity to participate in voluntary school prayers," Beall said, "it must be respected as strongly as we observe the minority rights of those citizens who sincerely disagree with them."

Beall's amendment, introduced June 27 with the cosponsorship of 14 other senators, states that nothing in the constitution should be construed to prohibit public schools from providing for the voluntary participation in nonsectarian prayers.

He said it is up to local officials to see to it that no child is coerced in any way into participating.

Beall urged prompt action by the committee so Congress could have a chance to vote before adjourning.

Beside Beall's, there are other constitutional amendments before the committee that are designed to nullify the court's decision. The group also is considering measures that simply would put congress on record as disagreeing with the court.

Baltimore Estimated To Have 200,000 Rats

BALTIMORE (AP) — The flight to the suburbs doesn't apply to Baltimore's rat population.

John A. Childs, head of the Baltimore Health Department's rodent control division, estimated Thursday that a minimum 200,000 rodents live in the city.

The figure might be reduced to 40,000 or 50,000, Childs said, if his division had at least 12 rodent control sanitarians instead of the six now on the payroll.

Westminster Race Protest Planned

BALTIMORE (AP) — An integrationist described Westminster Thursday as a town which was host to the racially integrated Baltimore Colts during spring training, but otherwise flagrantly abused the rights of Negroes.

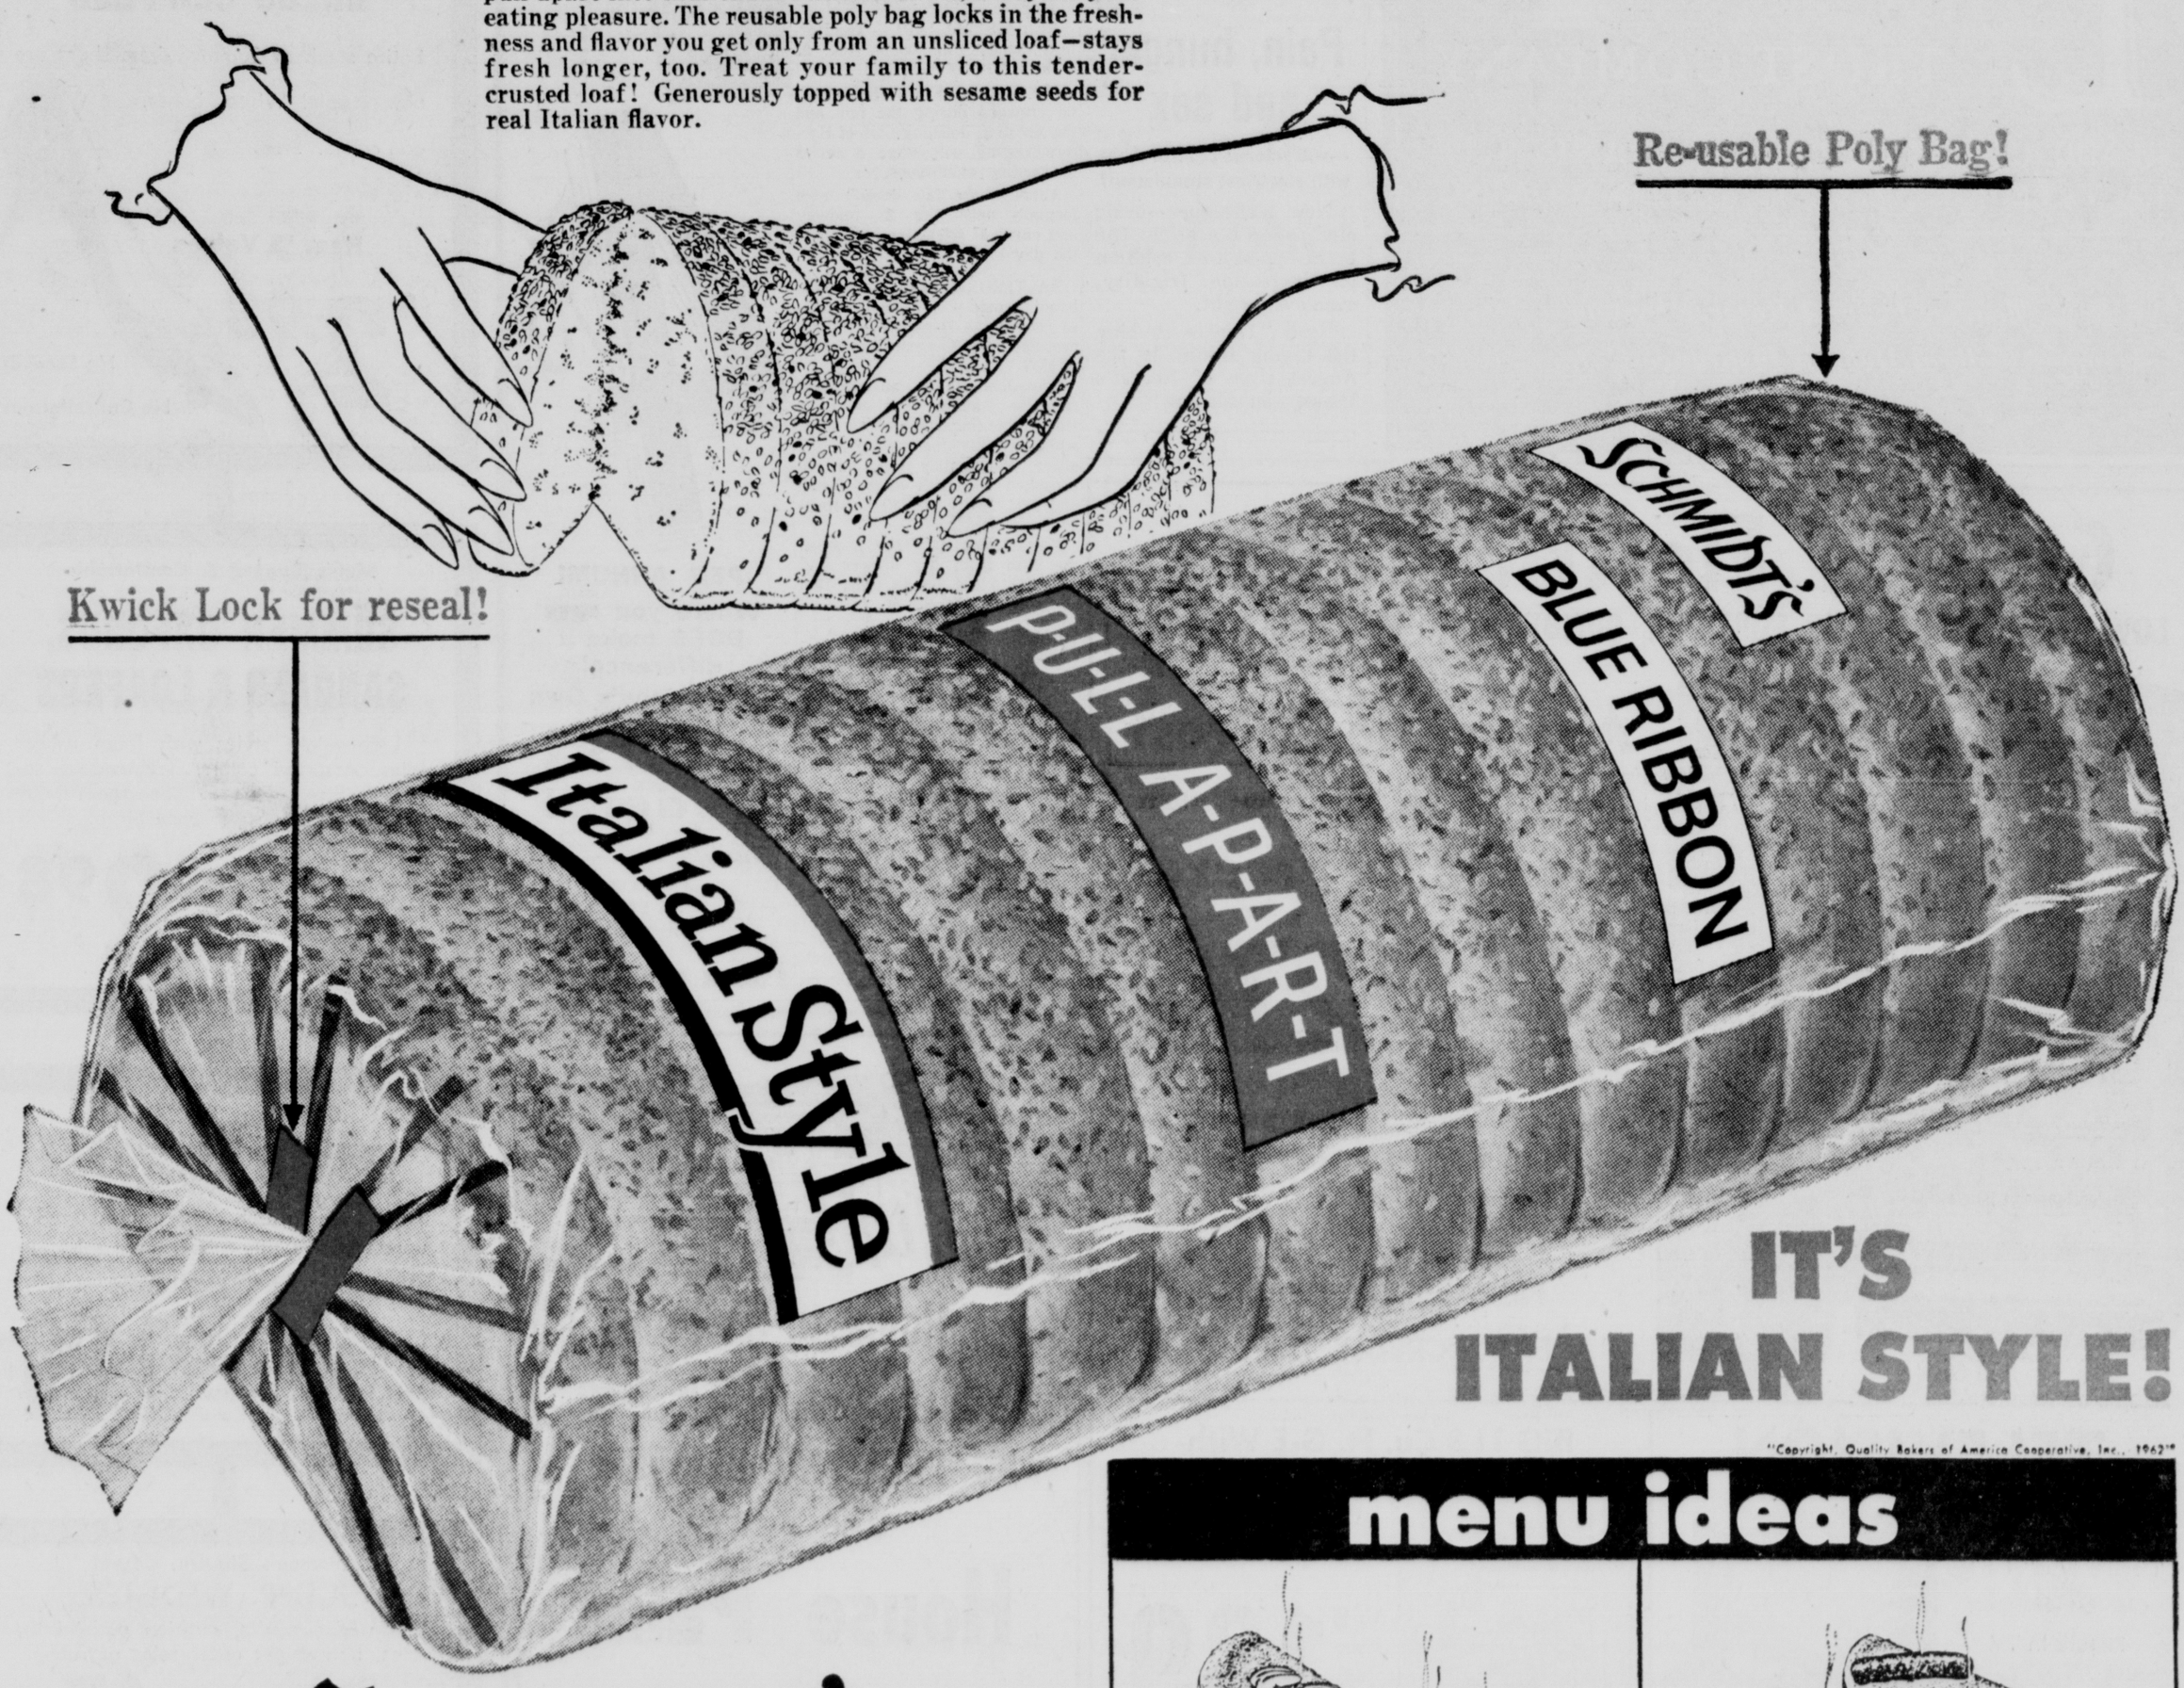

Walter Carter, chairman of the Baltimore chapter of the Congress of Racial Equality, called the Carroll County seat a town of contrast and announced his organization would stage anti-segregation protest demonstrations there Aug. 11.

Carter said the decision to demonstrate in Westminster came after a long period of negotiation and testing and at least one incident of violence.

Security Financial's "Final Liquidation" Ordered

BALTIMORE (AP) — Circuit Judge J. Gilbert Prendergast Thursday ordered Security Financial Insurance Corp. into state receivership "for final liquidation."

John H. Coppage, deputy insurance commissioner, was named receiver under bond of $25,000.

Judge Prendergast ordered Coppage to carry out "orderly liquidation pursuant to direction and further order of this court."

Security Financial, organized in 1959, had been the only commercial company with a state charter to write insurance on accounts in a savings and loan association.

Judge Prendergast filed his receivership order 24 hours after a seven-day trial ended. His opinion in full will be filed subsequently.

The receivership action was initiated by F. Douglass Sears, state insurance commissioner. He directed Security to set up financial reserves against any claims that might be filed by associations it had insured and which face liquidation themselves.

Sears claimed that if the reserves were set up, Security would be insolvent.

Controlling interest in Security Financial never has been disclosed beyond that a majority of stock was in the name of two Canadian holding companies.

It has been in the limelight since disclosure at the 1960 session of the Maryland legislature that it was incorporated by A. Gordon Boone, Towson lawyer and Democratic member of the House of Delegates.

Boone said he set up the corporation with money given him by a Chicago lawyer.

In addition to Boone, two other Baltimore County Democratic delegates, the county's Democratic state senator, the state's Democratic national committeeman and a former insurance commissioner were listed either as officers or stockholders.

Boone and the other Democratic figures resigned and some turned in their stock. Since then, there was another change in officers.

Sears fined Security earlier this year for trying to change its premium system without his approval and he refused to renew its annual license July 1.

Security then sent out notices to approximately two dozen associations it was no longer writing insurance.

Maryland Airmen "Thread Needle"

OTIS AIR FORCE BASE, Mass. (AP) — "Meetcha half a minute after midnight in the middle of the Grand Canyon." Anyone suggesting such a rendezvous would be suspected of pulling your leg.

But National Guard airmen from Maryland are doing it.

A crew was told to fly 1,000 miles and then drop a parachute at a designated spot at a certain time. They were 15 seconds late after flying around for 6½ hours.

The crew was from the 135th Troop Carrier Group stationed at the Martin Airport in Middle River. The group is on two weeks' summer training.

Their wartime mission would be to parachute specially trained Army troops into enemy territory and supply natives trained in guerrilla fighting by Americans.

Stop watch timing is an essential rather than speed. Also secrecy, since the contact would be in enemy territory.

The Maryland crews are practicing by flying distances equal to a third of the way across the country under radio silence in darkness.

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — A mother whose three children died of carbon monoxide fumes remained unconscious Thursday in Anne Arundel General Hospital.

Police said the station wagon's motor was running and a garden hose led from the exhaust pipe into the car.

City Police Changes Made

Police and Fire Commissioner William V. Keegan yesterday announced three personnel realignments in connection with a campaign to speed up and ease the flow of traffic through the city.

Effective Monday, Lt. Raymond R. Johnston who has been head of the Traffic Department, will take charge of the 7 a. m. to 3 p. m. patrol shift. In that post, he will be in charge of assigning patrolmen, charged with seeing all mechanical equipment is in working order and arranging time off and vacations.

Sgt. Gordon Hite, who has been on the 3 p. m. to 11 p. m. shift, will be assigned to the 7 a. m. to 3 p. m. shift and placed in full charge of traffic, Keegan said. As such, he will study changes necessary to improve the flow of traffic and recommend such changes subject to approval of Commissioner Keegan and Chief of Police B. Frank Gaffney.

Cpl. Oliver Cook, who has been on the 11 p. m. to 7 a. m. shift, will be transferred to the 3 p. m. to 11 p. m., shift replacing Hite effective August 1. Cpl. Cook also will be in charge of traffic but will work directly under the supervision of Sgt. Hite.

The changes are expected to give complete coordination of traffic plans and should produce excellent results, Keegan said.

Yesterday, Keegan swore in Howard Bennett as a patrolman in the department. Bennett is to go on the 11 p.m. to 7 a.m. shift, Chief Gaffney said.

Keegan said the department is continuing its program to improve traffic, contacting residents of certain areas to explain changes and what it is doing about parking.

He said the eight-hour parker is causing the department trouble and steps are being taken to remedy that situation.

All traffic lights are also under surveillance and a study made of traffic movement, where delays are and what changes might be possible.

Walk lanes for pedestrians have been or will be painted in at busy intersections. One is scheduled at the parking lot adjoining the Girl Scout House on Greene Street.

Keegan said he had also requested Street Commissioner Mrs. Lucile Roeder to give consideration to light surfacing the parking lot to "put down" dust. The city, he said, is receiving good revenue from users of the lot, many of whom are paying by the month.

Campers To Hold Meeting Today

The second Cumberland-to-Seattle camping tour will be discussed at a meeting today at 7 p. m. in the Allegany County Public Library.

Victor McKay, tour director who returned from the 8,000-mile camping trip Wednesday, said the second tour will leave the Queen City on the first or second of August.

McKay said preliminary plans will be made at tonight's meeting and interested children and parents should attend.

Gets Assignment

Maj. Leroy Grayson, native of Cumberland and graduate of Allegany High School, has assumed a new assignment as meteorologist for an inter-service project at the Desert Test Center, Fort Douglas, Salt Lake City, Utah.

Four Girls Seek Title Of 'Miss Fairgo'

A feature of the Cumberland Fair again this year will be the contest bringing together five area "queens" in a popularity contest.

Vying for the honor of "Miss Fairgo" will be the reigning queens of the Allegany County Farm Bureau and Associated Women, Mineral County (W. Va.) Fair, West Virginia Poultry Association, Garrett County Farm Bureau and the Somerset (Pa.) County Maple Festival.

One queen will be presented each evening, Monday through Friday, with the crowning set for Saturday as a climax to the week-long fair. "Miss Fairgo" will be chosen by popular vote, patrons being given ballots as they enter the grandstand for a nightly show featuring area talent and produced by Roy H. Knotts.

The "Gentlemen of Note," a local dance band, will play for the free grandstand show which will have Joseph F. Stakem as master of ceremonies.

Miss Carolyn Erickson, 16, RD 1, Oldtown, will represent Allegany County in the "Miss Fairgo" contest, while Miss Marian Gurzenda, Somerset, Pa., will come here as "Queen Maple XV."

The Garrett County, Mineral County and Poultry queens have not yet been selected.

City Seeks Bids On Chemicals

The Department of Streets and Public Property is asking bids on 400 bags of calcium chloride and for pest control work at the city dump, warehouse, City Hall and Public Safety Building.

Bids on both are due by 10 a. m. Monday, August 6, and will be opened by the Mayor and Council that day, Street Commissioner Lucile Roeder said.

The calcium chloride should be in 100-pound bags. Council reserves the right to select the calcium chloride which, in its judgment, will be best suited for its requirements or to reject any and all bids.

Former Pastor In Area Reassigned

Rev. Paul Poland, former pastor of Pentecostal Holiness Church, Corinth, W. Va., will assume the pastorate Sunday of Holiness Church at Daniels, in Baltimore County.

Rev. Mr. Poland served six years as pastor in Corinth, and last year served as supply pastor for several churches in this area.

He formerly was pastor in Hagerstown, Lonaconing and New Jersey, the latter his native state.

Truck, Car Crash In City

A Bowman's Addition man escaped injury when his brakeless station wagon sped down the steep grade of South Allegany Street and crashed into the side of a loaded transit-mix cement truck on Greene Street yesterday.

The 1955 station wagon of Walter James Hardesty, 60, was demolished, bue he received only scratches in the accident at 7:40 a. m. during one of the busiest times on Greene Street.

Hardesty told police he started down the steep grade from Washington Street and when he pressed on the pedal, he found that he had no brakes.

His vehicle crashed into the side of the westbound loaded cement truck operated by James Franklin Shanholtz, 32, of RD 1, Valley Road.

Officer Paul Penrod, who assisted in the investigation, said the quick-thinking of Shanholtz prevented a more serious mishap.

The officer said the truck driver had a green light at the intersection and was proceeding at normal rate when he suddenly sav the station wagon.

In the event he had maintained a normal course, the officer added, the car would have gone underneath the truck between the cab and the rear axle.

MONEY-SAVERS

Answers to 8 questions on car care that Shell dealers often hear

Shell dealers answer thousands of questions every year. Here are 8 that crop up all the time. The answers have helped many motorists save money. They may do the same for you.

1 What's that funny noise I hear? All cars make some noise. But be particularly alert for any squeals, squeaks, clicks, or rattles that crop up suddenly. Could be anything from a sticking valve lifter to a loose wheel lug. Ask your Shell dealer to help you track down any unusual noise. You may save yourself a big repair bill later on.

2 How can I get more mileage from my tires? Rotate all tires, including the spare, every 6,000 miles. Drive at moderate speeds. Tires can wear twice as fast at 70 miles per hour as at 45. Avoid fast cornering, "jackrabbit" starts, sudden stops. Try not to bang tires against curbs. And check your tire pressure frequently.

3 Do I really need a lube job every thousand miles? Yes—unless you have one of the newer models that doesn't require it. But with any car, remember that frequent lubrication offers your serviceman a chance to spot trouble before it costs you a lot of money. That's why Shell dealers give you a bumper-to-bumper inspection with every Shellubrication.

4 Can knock hurt my engine? Usually it's more annoying than harmful. But persistent knocking hampers performance and can lead to engine damage. That's why Shell scientists are such sticklers about knock. They even listen for it with stethoscopes and insist that Super Shell contain no fewer than three knock-fighting ingredients.

5 How can I make my battery last longer? Here are four suggestions: 1. Let your Shell dealer check your car's electrical system. Worn wires and loose connections can drain power. 2. Always maintain battery water to the proper level. 3. Avoid prolonged idling with radio turned on. 4. Go driving! Long drives help charge your battery.

6 What does TCP do? Shell's unique TCP* is a combustion control additive. The hot piston device above shows one way TCP works. The glowing deposit on the left has not been neutralized with TCP. In your engine, glowing deposits can ignite fuel too soon, wasting fuel and power. Deposit on right has been "fireproofed" by TCP. No glow — no power loss.

7 How often should I change oil? The American Petroleum Institute recommends an oil change every 30 days in winter, every 60 days during summer.

Note: New Shell X-100® Premium is the first premium motor oil that leaves no additive ash deposits. It fights four other internal troubles that can shorten engine life.

8 Why do my tires wear out on just one side? Most likely cause: wheels out of alignment. Result: your tires drag against the road and wear unevenly. Unbalanced wheels can also cause uneven wear and make your car shake or shimmy. That's why it's a good idea to keep tires balanced and have wheel alignment checked twice a year.

Now a question for you

City Police Changes Made

Police and Fire Commissioner William V. Keegan yesterday announced three personnel realignments in connection with a campaign to speed up and ease the flow of traffic through the city.

Effective Monday, Lt. Raymond R. Johnston who has been head of the Traffic Department, will take charge of the 7 a. m. to 3 p. m. patrol shift. In that post, he will be in charge of assigning patrolmen, charged with seeing all mechanical equipment is in working order and arranging time off and vacations.

Sgt. Gordon Hite, who has been on the 3 p. m. to 11 p. m. shift, will be assigned to the 7 a. m. to 3 p. m. shift and placed in full charge of traffic, Keegan said. As such, he will study changes necessary to improve the flow of traffic and recommend such changes subject to approval of Commissioner Keegan and Chief of Police B. Frank Gaffney.

Cpl. Oliver Cook, who has been on the 11 p. m. to 7 a. m. shift, will be transferred to the 3 p. m. to 11 p. m., shift replacing Hite effective August 1. Cpl. Cook also will be in charge of traffic but will work directly under the supervision of Sgt. Hite.

The changes are expected to give complete coordination of traffic plans and should produce excellent results, Keegan said.

Yesterday, Keegan swore in Howard Bennett as a patrolman in the department. Bennett is to go on the 11 p.m. to 7 a.m. shift, Chief Gaffney said.

Keegan said the department is continuing its program to improve traffic, contacting residents of certain areas to explain changes and what it is doing about parking.

He said the eight-hour parker is causing the department trouble and steps are being taken to remedy that situation.

All traffic lights are also under surveillance and a study made of traffic movement, where delays are and what changes might be possible.

Walk lanes for pedestrians have been or will be painted in at busy intersections. One is scheduled at the parking lot adjoining the Girl Scout House on Greene Street.

Keegan said he had also requested Street Commissioner Mrs. Lucile Roeder to give consideration to light surfacing the parking lot to "put down" dust. The city, he said, is receiving good revenue from users of the lot, many of whom are paying by the month.

Campers To Hold Meeting Today

The second Cumberland-to-Seattle camping tour will be discussed at a meeting today at 7 p. m. in the Allegany County Public Library.

Victor McKay, tour director who returned from the 8,000-mile camping trip Wednesday, said the second tour will leave the Queen City on the first or second of August.

McKay said preliminary plans will be made at tonight's meeting and interested children and parents should attend.

Gets Assignment

Maj. Leroy Grayson, native of Cumberland and graduate of Allegany High School, has assumed a new assignment as meteorologist for an inter-service project at the Desert Test Center, Fort Douglas, Salt Lake City, Utah.

Four Girls Seek Title Of 'Miss Fairgo'

A feature of the Cumberland Fair again this year will be the contest bringing together five area "queens" in a popularity contest.

Vying for the honor of "Miss Fairgo" will be the reigning queens of the Allegany County Farm Bureau and Associated Women, Mineral County (W. Va.) Fair, West Virginia Poultry Association, Garrett County Farm Bureau and the Somerset (Pa.) County Maple Festival.

One queen will be presented each evening, Monday through Friday, with the crowning set for Saturday as a climax to the week-long fair. "Miss Fairgo" will be chosen by popular vote, patrons being given ballots as they enter the grandstand for a nightly show featuring area talent and produced by Roy H. Knotts.

The "Gentlemen of Note," a local dance band, will play for the free grandstand show which will have Joseph F. Stakem as master of ceremonies.

Miss Carolyn Erickson, 16, RD 1, Oldtown, will represent Allegany County in the "Miss Fairgo" contest, while Miss Marian Gurzenda, Somerset, Pa., will come here as "Queen Maple XV."

The Garrett County, Mineral County and Poultry queens have not yet been selected.

Scouts Leave Here Saturday On 100-Mile Trip

A 100-mile hiking trip along the C&O canal from Cumberland to a point below Harpers Ferry, W. Va., will be undertaken Saturday by Boy Scout Troop 133, from Elizabeth, Pa.

Two adults and eight scouts will make the trip, commencing Saturday about 8 a. m. and expected to take 12 days.

The group, headed by Clark H. Rossell, scoutmaster, plans to arrive in Cumberland Friday and sleep under the stars on the Potomac River levee here Friday night.

Samuel Burroughs, senior assistant to the scoutmaster, will make the trip with the scouts, three of whom participated in a July, 1960, hike from Cumberland to Gen. Edward Braddock's grave west of Fort Necessity.

Robert Grayson, John Kampert and Thomas Braum made the trip over Braddock's trail and will participate in the canal junket. They will be joined by Michael Braum, Samuel Burroughs Jr., Robert Barrett, Milan Karen and John Wolfgang. Grayson, Thomas Braum, and Kampert will work toward their Eagle rank.

Rossell said the boys will not be using tents at night, but each will have a half-shelter tent and one blanket. They will use the shelter half as ground cloths, and two will sleep together, providing the use of two blankets for each pair, Rossell said.

The group's menu will consist mostly of dehydrated foods, powdered eggs, and milk. They will have cereal and French toast for breakfasts, and "maybe eggs and bacon for a treat" once in a while, Rossell remarked.

Their dinners will consist of corn cooked in the husks in hot coals, tomatoes, baked potatoes, most of this expected to be obtained during the hike.

Rossell stated that the boys will swim in the Potomac River at the end of each day's hiking, and also will do some fishing, their suitable catches to be cooked for eating.

Robert Grayson, John Kampert and Thomas Braum made the trip over Braddock's trail and will participate in the canal junket. They will be joined by Michael Braum, Samuel Burroughs Jr., Robert Barrett, Milan Karen and John Wolfgang. Grayson, Thomas Braum, and Kampert will work toward their Eagle rank.

Rossell said the boys will not be using tents at night, but each will have a half-shelter tent and one blanket. They will use the shelter half as ground cloths, and two will sleep together, providing the use of two blankets for each pair, Rossell said.

The group's menu will consist mostly of dehydrated foods, powdered eggs, and milk. They will have cereal and French toast for breakfasts, and "maybe eggs and bacon for a treat" once in a while, Rossell remarked.

Their dinners will consist of corn cooked in the husks in hot coals, tomatoes, baked potatoes, most of this expected to be obtained during the hike.

Rossell stated that the boys will swim in the Potomac River at the end of each day's hiking, and also will do some fishing, their suitable catches to be cooked for eating.

Ann Landers . . .

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our daughter is four years old. She is such a fincky eater I'm worried that she'll become ill from malnutrition. I've taken her to the doctor twice in the past six months and he says she's a little skinny but in good health.

She refuses to eat anything green or red. This means no lettuce, spinach, peas, beans, broccoli, red cabbage, rhubarb, beets, or cherries. She even turns her nose up at strawberry ice cream. She doesn't like any kind of meat and she won't touch fish.

I dread meal time because it always means fighting. Unless I sit there and shove a spoonful of whatever I can into her mouth she doesn't eat a thing. My husband becomes exasperated and sometimes he spanks her. This always starts an argument because I think he's too punishing.

Please help me before I lose my mind. My husband has threatened to start eating downtown unless things are made more pleasant at home.

—BESIDE MYSELF

Dear Beside: Your child has learned that the surest way to get attention is to stop eating.

From now on simply put the meal before her. After a reasonable period of time, remove her plate and say nothing, even if she ahsn't touched it.

Later if she says she's hungry tell her she can have a glass of milk, but no food until the next meal. When you stop making an issue of her eating habits the problem will disappear.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My boy friend is 17. I am 16. We've been dating steadily for over a year. We both have dated others but we always seem to get back together. Although we are too young to think of marriage now, we are very much in love and hope to be man and wife some day.

The problem is this: We always seem to be arguing about something. The longest we have been able to go without a single argument is two weeks. This worries me because my mother and father have been quarreling since I can remember and I don't want to have a marriage like that.

Is this something to be concerned about? How can two people avoid arguing? We always make up before the evening is over but even so, I hate to bicker and fight. Please help.

—WORCESTER

DEAR WORCESTER: A relationship that can't tolerate difference in opinion isn't worth a hoot. Frank discussion (and even disagreement) is healthy. It clears the air and makes for a better understanding. But the manner in which people disagree is important. Verbal attacks on one another can be most destructive.

Since you two always make up before the evening is over there's evidence your arguments are not destructive or harmful. And two weeks without a single rumble is pretty darned good.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband says I'm stuffy and a few of my friends agree with him. Now I would like your opinion.

We live in a lovely neighborhood, so please don't get the wrong idea when you read this letter. Our taxes are high and the homes in this area range from $25,000 up.

Our next door neighbors have three children under five years of age. When the weather is hot, the mother allows her children to run around in the front yard under the sprinkler with absolutely not one stitch of clothing on.

I say this cheapens the neighborhood and should not be allowed. I don't mind the screaming for hours on end because my children are noisy, too, but I do object to this nudity. What is your opinion?

—MRS. STUFFY

DEAR BRS. STUFFY: You're talking about babies — and I fail to see how naked babies playing under the sprinkler could cheapen the neighborhood.

Are you going steady? Making marriage plans? If so, send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "Before You Marry—Is It Love Or Sex?", enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Is it possible to feel a strong hatred for someone you love?

I love my husband yet there are times when I feel that I hate him because of things he has done to me that are not right. After I get over the hurt I love him as much as ever.

I read somewhere that if you love a person you love him ALL the time, and that nothing can ever change that feeling. If this is true then I'm not really in love.

Please set me straight. I am—FOGGED UP

DEAR FOGGED: Many conflicting emotions are separated by the breadth of a hair. As laughter and tears can be seconds apart, so it is with love and hate. Only those about whom we feel deeply can evoke strong emotions — so don't feel guilty about transient feelings of hate.

Ann Landers . . .

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our daughter is four years old. She is such a fincky eater I'm worried that she'll become ill from malnutrition. I've taken her to the doctor twice in the past six months and he says she's a little skinny but in good health.

She refuses to eat anything green or red. This means no lettuce, spinach, peas, beans, broccoli, red cabbage, rhubarb, beets, or cherries. She even turns her nose up at strawberry ice cream. She doesn't like any kind of meat and she won't touch fish.

I dread meal time because it always means fighting. Unless I sit there and shove a spoonful of whatever I can into her mouth she doesn't eat a thing. My husband becomes exasperated and sometimes he spanks her. This always starts an argument because I think he's too punishing.

Please help me before I lose my mind. My husband has threatened to start eating downtown unless things are made more pleasant at home.

—BESIDE MYSELF

Dear Beside: Your child has learned that the surest way to get attention is to stop eating.

From now on simply put the meal before her. After a reasonable period of time, remove her plate and say nothing, even if she ahsn't touched it.

Later if she says she's hungry tell her she can have a glass of milk, but no food until the next meal. When you stop making an issue of her eating habits the problem will disappear.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My boy friend is 17. I am 16. We've been dating steadily for over a year. We both have dated others but we always seem to get back together. Although we are too young to think of marriage now, we are very much in love and hope to be man and wife some day.

The problem is this: We always seem to be arguing about something. The longest we have been able to go without a single argument is two weeks. This worries me because my mother and father have been quarreling since I can remember and I don't want to have a marriage like that.

Is this something to be concerned about? How can two people avoid arguing? We always make up before the evening is over but even so, I hate to bicker and fight. Please help.

—WORCESTER

DEAR WORCESTER: A relationship that can't tolerate difference in opinion isn't worth a hoot. Frank discussion (and even disagreement) is healthy. It clears the air and makes for a better understanding. But the manner in which people disagree is important. Verbal attacks on one another can be most destructive.

Since you two always make up before the evening is over there's evidence your arguments are not destructive or harmful. And two weeks without a single rumble is pretty darned good.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband says I'm stuffy and a few of my friends agree with him. Now I would like your opinion.

We live in a lovely neighborhood, so please don't get the wrong idea when you read this letter. Our taxes are high and the homes in this area range from $25,000 up.

Our next door neighbors have three children under five years of age. When the weather is hot, the mother allows her children to run around in the front yard under the sprinkler with absolutely not one stitch of clothing on.

I say this cheapens the neighborhood and should not be allowed. I don't mind the screaming for hours on end because my children are noisy, too, but I do object to this nudity. What is your opinion?

—MRS. STUFFY

DEAR BRS. STUFFY: You're talking about babies — and I fail to see how naked babies playing under the sprinkler could cheapen the neighborhood.

Are you going steady? Making marriage plans? If so, send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "Before You Marry—Is It Love Or Sex?", enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Is it possible to feel a strong hatred for someone you love?

I love my husband yet there are times when I feel that I hate him because of things he has done to me that are not right. After I get over the hurt I love him as much as ever.

I read somewhere that if you love a person you love him ALL the time, and that nothing can ever change that feeling. If this is true then I'm not really in love.

Please set me straight. I am—FOGGED UP

DEAR FOGGED: Many conflicting emotions are separated by the breadth of a hair. As laughter and tears can be seconds apart, so it is with love and hate. Only those about whom we feel deeply can evoke strong emotions — so don't feel guilty about transient feelings of hate.

West Virginia Clubs And Bars Plan 'Dryup'

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—West Virginia clubs and Northern Panhandle bars who sell whisky by the drink reportedly will dry up voluntarily from Oct. 1 through election day Nov. 6.

A Charleston newspaper, The Daily Mail, said the object of the dryup would be an effort in support of the liquor by the drink amendment to be voted on in the election.

The move reportedly is the latest strategy of the pro - liquor group, West Virginians for Moderation. The newspaper said the bars reportedly would dry up voluntarily or face intensive law enforcement and that the State Sheriffs Association and Prosecuting Attorneys Association had agreed to support the move.

A spokesman for the "moderation" group, Paul Skeeter, 38, Charleston, named president of the organization Thursday, said the report was "for the most part" correct. "However, there were certain inaccuracies in the story," he said.

"For one thing, we did not at any time during a recent meeting here threaten those (bar operators) present with law enforcement action if they did not comply with our request.

"Furthermore, we did not say the Sheriff's Association had agreed to clamp down on those establishments which did not comply. We hope the association will be in favor of the amendment's passage but we have not as yet asked for their support, nor have they pledged it.

"This situation also exists as far as the Prosecuting Attorneys Association is concerned. After all, we are a non - partisan organization and as such we do not have the facilities to launch a state-wide law enforcement campaign," Skeeter said.

Skeeter was named to head the organization after Clem Jones, Huntington, resigned to devote more time to his private business. Skeeter was formerly employed by the Public Service Commission and is executive director of the Mountain State Visitors Bureau.

Several clubs where drinks are sold reportedly attended the recent meeting of the pro - liquor group where the decision for the voluntary dryup was reached.

It was reported that fraternal organizations as well as country clubs will be contacted later and that another meeting will be held next month.

The effect of the closing reportedly would be to make club members and their families realize what would happen if the liquor amendment were defeated. A pro-liquor spokesman said a defeat would be taken as a mandate from the people that they want law enforcement officials to rigidly enforce the law on illegal liquor sales, including bar sales at clubs.

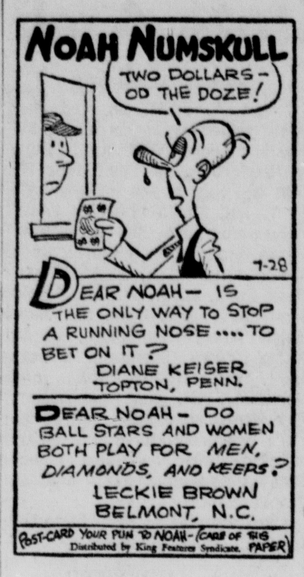

Mike Rush, executive secretary, for the "moderation" group said no threat was intended in the dryup effort and that it was felt most establishment would cooperate but that he felt it was logical that law enforcement officers would not allow a few places to operate while others were closed.

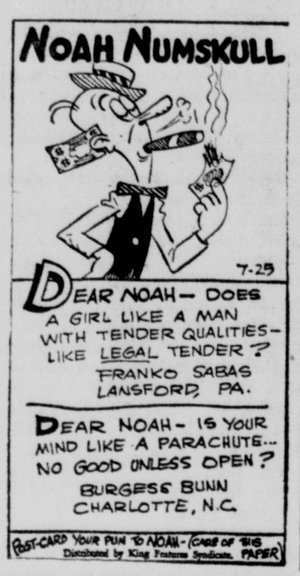

State Police Supt. W. E. Burchett said he had not been approached regarding the reported closedown and had no comment at this time.

Untidy War In Viet Nam

The rising, albeit still small, toll of American dead in South Viet Nam's untidy jungle war doubtless will be discussed when Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara goes to Hawaii. Since announcing last winter that he would maintain personal review of the U.S. assistance program for South Viet Nam the Secretary has flown to Hawaii for four meetings and made an on-the-scene inspection.

What course the conflict in South Viet Nam has taken still is far from clear. Official U. S. statements have put a cautiously optimistic face on the situation. Until the dark weekend in mid-July when six Americans were killed, it seemed that the pattern was markedly better from an American point of view.

Even before the latest casualties, however, The Associated Press in interviews with a number of Army officials who had returned from the area painted a picture of general dissatisfaction with the use to which U. S. special forces were being put and with collapse of the intelligence system upon which counter-guerrilla operations depend. Lack of cooperation from South Viet Nam's dictatorial president, Ngo Dinh Diem, was given a large part of the blame. Later, Gen. George H. Decker, U. S. Army Chief of Staff, issued a statement which tried to take some of the sting out of the AP findings.

Subterranean war in South Viet Nam is not suited to American tastes, which run to quick and decisive victory. The public has been warned on many occasions, however, that a long and hard struggle is in prospect. "We must . . . be patient," McNamara declared during one of his Hawaii conferences earlier this year, "and not expect . . . results for some period of time."

First Lady Nurses Grudge Against Family Who Opposed Sale Of Estate

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — Mrs. Jackie Kennedy is one of the most beautiful and demure ladies in Washington but she's also a lady who can get her dander up.

One such occasion took place before and during one of the notable weddings of the current Washington social season, when Ambassador Angier Biddle Duke married Mrs. Robin Chandler Lynn of New York.

Ambassador Duke, one of the grandsons of the founder of Duke's mixture smoking tobacco and of the American Tobacco Company, has done an A-1 job of handling the many problems of the diplomatic corps. He is an old friend of Walter Ridder, columnist for the Ridder Newspapers. So it was arranged that the wedding ceremony should take place at the Ridder Home in McLean, Va., which looks down over the Potomac gorge and one of the most beautiful views around Washington. After the wedding, the Ridders were also holding a reception for the couple.

At first it looked as if President and Mrs. Kennedy would not be able to attend. But shortly before the wedding, they sent word that they would attend the reception — but not if it was held at the Ridder's home.

Ridder graciously stepped aside, went to a lot of work to telephone guests that the reception following the wedding would be held not at his home, but at the home of another friend, Sen. Claiborne Pell (D., R.I.), just across the river.

So the Duke wedding was held at the Ridders' home in Virginia, following which the bridal couple with friends picked up their wedding gowns and crossed the river to the home of Senator Pell where they staged the wedding reception.

The President and Mrs. Kennedy did attend the reception, not the wedding. At the reception, the President, who is an old friend of Walter Ridder, chatted cordially with the man to whose home he had refused to come. Jackie Kennedy cut the Ridder's dead.

Note—The Ridders are among those who opposed the sale of Merrywood, the estate owned by stepfather Hugh D. Auchincloss for a real-estate development on the ground that it would ruin a residential neighborhood.

Private Planes Axed

The most significant economy put across by Secretary of Defense McNamara has caused the greatest howls of brass hat anguish. It's the crackdown on "administrative" airplanes. McNamara has slashed all expenditure for the plush personal airplanes used by the brass hats out of the 1963 budget.

"We have enough administrative planes now," he told his aides. "Let's stop building them at least for one year."

The public doesn't realize it but "special mission and administrative" planes in 1960 reached the whopping total of 719 in the Air Force. This does not include the aero-commanders used by top officers to keep up their flight pay even though jets are the airplane of modern warfare and even though the missile is replacing the jet.

The number of these "administrative" planes was a secret until persevering Rep. Dan Flood (D., Pa.), managed to pry the number out of the Defense Department. It took a lot of correspondence and insistence on Flood's part, but he finally broke down the 1960 figure as 719 of which 87 plush jobs are assigned to headquarters command in Washington, 125 to the Strategic Air Command, and 56 to the brass hats in Europe, plus two at Maxwell Air Force Base, Ala.

The Pacific Air Force has 54 swank jobs while 211 are divided between the air defense, air material, and air research commands. The Navy maintains 117 VIP jobs.

Blue-Pencil McNamara

The armed forces have so many private planes that a short time ago Lt. Gen. Alan Shapely, Marine Corps Commander of the Pacific, sent three pet dogs in style by special plane from Hawaii to the California coast at the taxpayers' expense.

Despite this, the armed forces this year wanted 105 new private planes, as follows: the Air Force proposed 50 T-39's at $39,300,000; 18 C-140's at $29,700,000; 15 F-27's at $23,400,000.

On top of this the Navy wanted 12 Gulf Streams at $14,800,000 plus 10 C-130's at $25,00,000. The total was $132,200,000.

McNamara simply crossed this out of the budget. In addition, the economy-minded Secretary of Defense has ordered the brass hats to travel tourist. This has made some admirals and generals seethe with indignation. Some even travel first class and pay the difference themselves. They can't complain too much, however, for the Secretary of Defense himself travels tourist.

When he takes an overseas hop he doesn't travel in an "administrative" plane but uses a KC-135 jet tanker with three bunks, one on top of the other, average toilet facilities, no soundproofing and only a small galley in which to cook. It costs $200,000 to convert one these planes into the plush type used for executive junkets and the Secretary of Defense says the jet tanker is good enough for him.

Note — Cutting out the "administrative" planes was one of McNamara's solo decisions which retiring Secretary of the Army, Elvis Stahr, complained about. Stahr claimed McNamara made too many decisions on his own. "Somebody has to make 'em," growled the Secretary of Defense. "If I don't make 'em, who will?"

Taylor Advocates Emphasis On Ground Forces

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON—Does President Kennedy's appointment of General Maxwell D. Taylor to be Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff represent a renewed emphasis on ground forces? This question is a vital one now as the far-reaching development of missiles and nuclear weapons seems to be bringing about a stalemate or balance of power so far as major wars are concerned.

One school of thought nowadays assumes that local wars are to be the order of the day and that this phase of American defense policy has been neglected. General Taylor holds that view. He has been intimately identified in recent months with the build-up of forces in Berlin and in dealing with the "guerrilla" warfare problem in Southeast Asia.

There are, however, fundamental differences of opinion here as to what constitutes the safer strategy for the United States. The rivalry between the armed services has by no means been adjourned. The Air Force and the Navy, whose chiefs differed vigorously with General Taylor when he was Chief of Staff of the Army, are bound to resume their lively debate over the way the money provided for national defense shall be spent.

General Taylor, like a good many other men of positive views in the armed services, has been a controversial figure. He voluntarily retired as Chief of Staff of the Army in 1959 after he found himself in a one-to-three position versus the heads of the Navy and the Air Force and the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, who repeatedly sided against him. He felt that President Eisenhower, being an Army man, should have supported his views on building up conventional forces. After retiring, General Taylor wrote a book, "The Uncertain Trumpet," which caused a lot of discussion as he reiterated the views he had unsuccessfully advocated in the meetings of the Joint Chiefs.

Mr. Kennedy was very much impressed with the book and used it as ammunition on the political stump in many campaign speeches. It was the basis on which the Democratic presidential nominee criticized President Eisenhower for having failed to increase and modernize conventional forces, for having relied too much on the "massive deterrent" policy, and for setting budget ceilings on national defense.

When General Taylor was selected as personal adviser to President Kennedy shortly after the Cuban "invasion" fiasco, many high officers in the armed services were a bit perturbed. Some of them felt that, since he was to be at the President's side constantly, it meant that the Joint Chiefs of Staff would be virtually subordinated to General Taylor. For that reason, some of the top officers in the Navy and Air Force said this week that they feel it is much better for General Taylor to have the full responsibility as Chairman of the Joint Chiefs than to be exercising influence on military matters at the White House as a personal assistant to the President.

The comment among various officers in the armed services is that General Taylor was himself not a team player when he was a member of the Joint Chiefs. It is said that he didn't feel bound to support decisions with which he had disagreed. At the same time, some of these same officers recall that General Taylor used to say that a chairman of the Joint Chiefs shouldn't be bossy or attempt to override his associates. There is speculation now whether he will adopt the same view if he encounters differences of opinion among his fellow staff officers.

Congress, of course, and particularly chairmen of the military affairs committees in both houses, will continue to show a sensitiveness to interservice conflicts and differences. General Taylor is no stranger to these committees, and some strong words of praise were spoken in his behalf on Capitol Hill the other day when he was appointed.

Incidentally, General Lyman L. Lemnitzer, who was appointed to succeed General Lauris Norstad at NATO, has passed the voluntary retirement age of 62. His departure will be mandatory next year when he is 64 unless Congress passes a special act to retain him in that post. He is not unfamiliar with NATO, since, as Chief of Staff of the Army, he has had to deal with its problems. Also, in the 1940's he was instrumental in formulating the original plans for the NATO operation.

The big question mark, however, is whether General Taylor's appointment as head of the Joint Chiefs means the beginning of an effort on his part, with the co-operation of Secretary of Defense McNamara and President Kennedy, to centralize control of the armed services. In his book, he advocated that the Joint Chiefs of Staff be dissolved and replaced by a single defense chief of staff and an advisory board, with the service chiefs of staff operating their individual military services.

20th Century Morals

There used to be a town called Sodom which the Lord in His eternal wisdom ordered destroyed. From it has come down to us, to this day, the word sodomy and apparently, from ancient times to the present, it is a practice disapproved by most of mankind. Its defenders point to a galaxy of practitioners from Plato to Tchaikovsky to prove that such persons may contribute much to mankind.

It is generally maintained by police officials that apart from the morals involved, the practitioners of various homosexual methods are prone to being blackmailed. In fact, if caught at their activity, they are usually arrested. They are therefore unfit for service in sensitive areas of government, such as the State or Defense Departments.

A correspondent from Washington, D. C. writes me to challenge such a statement:

"By what authority or knowledge do you presume that all homosexuals are so ashamed of their state and activities that they are subject to blackmail on that account? I can assure you that this is not so. I know many hundreds of homosexuals, and I know that these people are not all subject to blackmail, by any means."

Obviously any person who is liable to arrest for his private habits, whatever they may be, can be blackmailed by the threat of exposure. Were we to have laws passed recognizing homosexuality as a permissible way of life, it would be different. Such a person would walk into the junior misses department of a store and make such purchases as he required. Instead, he devises indirect means to acquire the simplest articles of female attire. I was once told by a woman that she sells her clothes to such a person who acts for others of his pecularity who require them . Were there no resistance to such habits, such contrivance would not be necessary.

My correspondent tells me:

"There are some 15,000,000 homosexuals in this country. There are about a quarter-million in the government service, another 250,000 in the Armed Forces (over a million served well and honorably in World War II), and over a quarter-million with security clearances. The amount of harm or damage done by these people is demonstrably absolutely nil. It exists purely in the minds of those prone to superstition."

These figures are astonishing. There has been no census to establish them. In his wildest enthusiasm for the extirpation of the State Department, Joe McCarthy never came up with any figures like this, which, in effect, say that something like 12 per cent of the American population is homosexual. If that is so, we must be a very sick race. Of course, child births disprove these figures, but then the homosexuals claim that this is no evidence of their real intent.

I have not known "many hundreds of homosexuals," as my correspondent says he has. Truth to tell, in half a century of roaming the earth, I have only met four of them and their absorption with the subject was as distressing as watching a fellow eat himself to death, or looking at an alcoholic who has but one thought in mind. This concentration on a function as though it were a great cause has a debasing effect upon the individual.

The only woman of this proclivity whom I encountered was a most brilliant mind and was, in a manner of speaking, respected. Such a person usually is a well-known figure, particularly in her own profession. I have not come across her or her name in years.

I think these figures are exaggerated. Nevertheless, were the figures even near the truth, this country would be faced with a serious moral and social problem which requires serious attention. There can be no question but that the State and Defense Departments should accept the challenge and uncover what the truth is. Homosexuals should be dismissed from these departments because they are subject to blackmail, particularly by Soviet Russia which regards such conduct as punishable hooliganism.

The concentration upon sex is not unusual in post-war periods. This is a problem of physical and mental health, tensions, disappointments and the need to escape from one's own problems. Society usually counters the period of the Georges with strict Victorianism. Society battles self-destruction which homosexuality obviously is. The time has come, in our civilization, when we think of physical survival to consider also moral survival.

Inside Washington

By Henry Cathcart

ADAMS SET PACE — Probably the most prominent ex-Senator to serve in the House was John Quincy Adams, who was a Senator from 1803 to 1808 and later served in the House from 1831 until his death in 1848 in the Capitol. In between he was President of the United States.

Another well-known American who served first in the Senate and then in the House was Henry Clay, one of the great figures of his age. Clay was a Senator from 1806 to 1807, serving before he was 30 years of age, notwithstanding the constitutional limitation. He was a Senator again from 1810 to 1811 and then ran for the House in the belief membership in that body would aid him more in achieving the Presidency. He served in the House, 1811-14, 1815-21, 1823-25, being signally honored by being chosen Speaker each time. He was an unsuccessful Whig candidate for the White House in 1824, 1832 and 1844. He completed his service in Congress as a Senator, 1831-42 and 1849-52.

More recently, Matthew Neely, West Virginia Democrat, had the unusual distinction of serving first in the House, then the Senate, again the House, and finally tht Senate. During this period he also served as governor. His service in Congress embraced the years 1913-29, 1931-41, 1945-47, 1949-58. He died in office.

A similar record in Congress was held by Theodore E. Burton, Ohio Republican. He served in the House, Senate, House and Senate during the period 1889-1929. He also died in office.

Another well-known former Senator who served in the House was James W. Wadsworth Jr., New York Republican. He was in the Senate from 1915 to 1927. Defeated for re-election, he was subsequently chosen for the House in 1933 and served there with distinction for nine terms.

One former Senator is now serving in the House. He is Rep. Alton A. Lennon, D-N.C., who was in the Senate from 1953 to 1954.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

By Jim Bishop

The flight to Proxima Centauri is off. Definitely. No use bursting into tears, my friends. Just return your tickets to the Fugazy Travel Bureau, or your local psychiatrist, and get your money back. I had thought, when everyone else was buying tickets for the first flight to the moon, or Jupiter, or maybe Mars, that I would find a nice quiet star which no one else could spell.

So I picked Proxima Centauri. It is just around the corner, spacially speaking — only 18.6 light years away. A good place if you like to rough it on a weekend. A place where you could carry a knapsack, a couple of cans of beans, a package of bacon and the juice of one bottle of bourbon and live like a king.

Of course, the space ships aren't ready. Some of our missiles are missing. One of our astronauts, coming in for a landing, almost missed the whole Atlantic Ocean. Everybody counts down, but so few get up. Still, the model T missiles are being refined so that soon we will have citizens traipsing around the moon craters, ready to be mugged in the dark by neuter natives with one eye apiece.

Now I have the word of no less an authority than Dr. Sebastian von Hoerner — who else? — that man may fly around his own little solar system, but he will never get out of the terrestrial backyard. Never. That includes Proxima Centauri, because Prox just so happens to be out of this world.

Maybe von Hoerner is, too, but that's another quantum question. Dr. Sebast, as I like to think of him, is holed up in Heidelberg, Germany, where he dreams up reasons why we can't do this and that. Recently, he wrote an article for Science, in which he pointed out that man may soon snap off his pad to visit the neighboring planets around our sun, but that we will remain prisoners in our own little world and never get out of it.

Well. You should have seen what that did to the morning corn flakes. Dr. Sebast also feels that some of us are megalomaniacs. Science knows that there are millions of suns, and that these suns radiate warmth on billions of planets. Therefore, the good doctor assumes that there must be other sophisticated civilizations and, if we are trying to get into orbit now, others may have it from far-away worlds long ago.

"It would be megalomania," says Dr. Sebast, "to think that we are the one intelligent civilization in the universe. On the contrary, we should assume from our present knowledge that life and intelligence will have developed, with about the same speed as on earth, wherever the proper surroundings and the needed time have been provided."

Why then, have they not flown to us? Because it is impossible. Von Hoerner says that if you can imagine our earth as a single grain of sand, then the sun is a cherry pit three feet away. The nearest star, my very own Proxima Centauri, would be 140 miles distant.

A light year is, roughly, 6 trillions of miles. Prox is almost 112 trillions of miles out. The space experts are thinking of making missiles which will fly at an escape velocity of 25,000 miles per hour. This is pretty fair sped, but if I departed from Cape Canaveral the day I was born, I would be 500,000 years old when I arrived at the nearest star.

And that's only one way. After I arrived — you can bet I'd be pretty tired of all that weightlessness and nothingness — I would be at a hot sun, not a planet. If I wanted to land in a habitable place — you know, one with a grassy picnic grounds and ants in the peanut butter — I would have to fly on for another two million years.

The word for all this is absurd. Nobody in his right mind has two million years to fritter away looking at space. Speaking of space, I'd settle for some closet room around the house. I'm not hard to please. Small minds have small goals.

Von Hoerner says that the only way man can ever escape his environment would be to build a space ship capable of traveling at close to the speed of light — 186,000 miles per second, or, 669,600,000 m.p.h. If we had that kind of a convertible, I could get to the friendly planets beyond Proxima Centauri in about 23 years and, not counting the weekend making passes at the friendly native girls, could be back home in another 23 years.

The doctor says that the engine pushing the space vehicle must not weigh more than 10 paper clips and must supply (for 46 years) 15 million watts of electricity.

Any questions? . . .

Reader's Views Make Doctor Feel Inadequate

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Some days I feel inadequate. "Dear Dr. Van Dellen," writes F. N. from New Rochelle, N. Y. "I'm surprised that you don't know the cause of cancer. There is no doubt it is caused by diseased chickens. Barnyard fowl eat anything that comes their way and do us more harm than we consciously realize."

Everyone is entitled to his opinion but I love to eat chicken and will continue to do so. Our reader was not content to stop with this information and added:

"Just recently I wrote to the mental hygiene department and suggested the use of ice cream as a mental soother and the organization is enthusiastic about its possibilities. I explained to them that mental problems are the equivalent of mental fever, just as physical ailments have fever which present themselves on the thermometer. Food for thought — not found in medical textbooks."

So true — about the textbooks, that is. The term mental fever is rather catching, considering related expressions such as hot under the collar, let off steam, and cool off. F. N. ought to cool off, and not with ice cream.

A New York City reader writes, "On Jan. 31 your article was headed 'Genius and Insanity Have Nothing in Common.' This is a false statement. Obsession with one idea, pursuit, or action is common in insanity. The genius likewise is obsessed, usually in one field, because of talent, interest, or bent."

We could spend the rest of this column arguing with this reader but we suggest he look up the word "obsession." He might find that persons in all walks of life and various degrees of intelligence have obsessions.

I might disagree with the title (which was not mine) by saying geniuses and the insane do have things in common. They have two eyes, shiver when cold, and become hungry when dinner time rolls around.

TOMORROW: Summer food poisoning.

SCALP PSORIASIS

M. M. L. writes: My husband has psoriasis on his scalp, which is very itchy. He washes his hair with mange soap, which seems to help a little. Is there anything we can use to control or cure this condition?

REPLY

There are many different ointments and solution but the majority are messy. Coal tar ointments and ultraviolet are the best combination. Tar sensitizes the skin to ultraviolet, which must be remembered when products containing tar are used on exposed areas during the summer. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on psoriasis.

ANIMAL GALL BLADDERS

S. D. writes: Do animals have a gall bladder?

REPLY

Some do. It is absent in the horse, deer, and rat but is present in cattle, sheep, dogs, cats, and mice. Some species of animals never develop gallstones.

VITAMIN B12 SUPERIOR

L. R. writes: Can pernicious anemia be relieved by diet?

REPLY

Yes, with tons of liver. It is easier to take a shot of vitamin B12 every three or four weeks.

To the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

Try And Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

When veteran newspaper man John Wheeler was a young sprout, he met the great John L. Sullivan, world's heavyweight champion and a man of inordinate vanity. Sullivan reached over and pulled a big cigar out of Wheeler's mouth. He took three or four puffs of it, then handed it back with a grin. "There you are, young feller," he boomed, "and remember I would not do that for every so and so!"

A minister in Evansville had fallen into the habit of placing his sermons on the pulpit about an hour before the church service. One young rascal discovered this habit, and one day, before the congregation convened, he neatly detached the last page from the manuscript.

The minister delivered his sermon in ringing tones, and read the last line of what was now the final page: "So, Adam said to Eve . . ." Searching in vain for the following page, the minister made a mental note to give his secretary what for, cleared his throat nervously, then concluded his sermon weakly, "So, Adam said to Eve—there seems to be a leaf missing!"

If the American Dental Association is on the ball, it will give serious attention to John Fuller's suggested slogan for the tooth-pullers of our nation: "Nothing dentured, nothing gained."

"By what authority or knowledge do you presume that all homosexuals are so ashamed of their state and activities that they are subject to blackmail on that account? I can assure you that this is not so. I know many hundreds of homosexuals, and I know that these people are not all subject to blackmail, by any means."

Obviously any person who is liable to arrest for his private habits, whatever they may be, can be blackmailed by the threat of exposure. Were we to have laws passed recognizing homosexuality as a permissible way of life, it would be different. Such a person would walk into the junior misses department of a store and make such purchases as he required. Instead, he devises indirect means to acquire the simplest articles of female attire. I was once told by a woman that she sells her clothes to such a person who acts for others of his pecularity who require them . Were there no resistance to such habits, such contrivance would not be necessary.

My correspondent tells me:

"There are some 15,000,000 homosexuals in this country. There are about a quarter-million in the government service, another 250,000 in the Armed Forces (over a million served well and honorably in World War II), and over a quarter-million with security clearances. The amount of harm or damage done by these people is demonstrably absolutely nil. It exists purely in the minds of those prone to superstition."

These figures are astonishing. There has been no census to establish them. In his wildest enthusiasm for the extirpation of the State Department, Joe McCarthy never came up with any figures like this, which, in effect, say that something like 12 per cent of the American population is homosexual. If that is so, we must be a very sick race. Of course, child births disprove these figures, but then the homosexuals claim that this is no evidence of their real intent.

I have not known "many hundreds of homosexuals," as my correspondent says he has. Truth to tell, in half a century of roaming the earth, I have only met four of them and their absorption with the subject was as distressing as watching a fellow eat himself to death, or looking at an alcoholic who has but one thought in mind. This concentration on a function as though it were a great cause has a debasing effect upon the individual.

The only woman of this proclivity whom I encountered was a most brilliant mind and was, in a manner of speaking, respected. Such a person usually is a well-known figure, particularly in her own profession. I have not come across her or her name in years.

I think these figures are exaggerated. Nevertheless, were the figures even near the truth, this country would be faced with a serious moral and social problem which requires serious attention. There can be no question but that the State and Defense Departments should accept the challenge and uncover what the truth is. Homosexuals should be dismissed from these departments because they are subject to blackmail, particularly by Soviet Russia which regards such conduct as punishable hooliganism.

The concentration upon sex is not unusual in post-war periods. This is a problem of physical and mental health, tensions, disappointments and the need to escape from one's own problems. Society usually counters the period of the Georges with strict Victorianism. Society battles self-destruction which homosexuality obviously is. The time has come, in our civilization, when we think of physical survival to consider also moral survival.

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — Mrs. Jackie Kennedy is one of the most beautiful and demure ladies in Washington but she's also a lady who can get her dander up.

One such occasion took place before and during one of the notable weddings of the current Washington social season, when Ambassador Angier Biddle Duke married Mrs. Robin Chandler Lynn of New York.

Ambassador Duke, one of the grandsons of the founder of Duke's mixture smoking tobacco and of the American Tobacco Company, has done an A-1 job of handling the many problems of the diplomatic corps. He is an old friend of Walter Ridder, columnist for the Ridder Newspapers. So it was arranged that the wedding ceremony should take place at the Ridder Home in McLean, Va., which looks down over the Potomac gorge and one of the most beautiful views around Washington. After the wedding, the Ridders were also holding a reception for the couple.

At first it looked as if President and Mrs. Kennedy would not be able to attend. But shortly before the wedding, they sent word that they would attend the reception — but not if it was held at the Ridder's home.

Ridder graciously stepped aside, went to a lot of work to telephone guests that the reception following the wedding would be held not at his home, but at the home of another friend, Sen. Claiborne Pell (D., R.I.), just across the river.

So the Duke wedding was held at the Ridders' home in Virginia, following which the bridal couple with friends picked up their wedding gowns and crossed the river to the home of Senator Pell where they staged the wedding reception.

The President and Mrs. Kennedy did attend the reception, not the wedding. At the reception, the President, who is an old friend of Walter Ridder, chatted cordially with the man to whose home he had refused to come. Jackie Kennedy cut the Ridder's dead.

Note—The Ridders are among those who opposed the sale of Merrywood, the estate owned by stepfather Hugh D. Auchincloss for a real-estate development on the ground that it would ruin a residential neighborhood.

Private Planes Axed

The most significant economy put across by Secretary of Defense McNamara has caused the greatest howls of brass hat anguish. It's the crackdown on "administrative" airplanes. McNamara has slashed all expenditure for the plush personal airplanes used by the brass hats out of the 1963 budget.

"We have enough administrative planes now," he told his aides. "Let's stop building them at least for one year."

The public doesn't realize it but "special mission and administrative" planes in 1960 reached the whopping total of 719 in the Air Force. This does not include the aero-commanders used by top officers to keep up their flight pay even though jets are the airplane of modern warfare and even though the missile is replacing the jet.

The number of these "administrative" planes was a secret until persevering Rep. Dan Flood (D., Pa.), managed to pry the number out of the Defense Department. It took a lot of correspondence and insistence on Flood's part, but he finally broke down the 1960 figure as 719 of which 87 plush jobs are assigned to headquarters command in Washington, 125 to the Strategic Air Command, and 56 to the brass hats in Europe, plus two at Maxwell Air Force Base, Ala.

The Pacific Air Force has 54 swank jobs while 211 are divided between the air defense, air material, and air research commands. The Navy maintains 117 VIP jobs.

Blue-Pencil McNamara

The armed forces have so many private planes that a short time ago Lt. Gen. Alan Shapely, Marine Corps Commander of the Pacific, sent three pet dogs in style by special plane from Hawaii to the California coast at the taxpayers' expense.

Despite this, the armed forces this year wanted 105 new private planes, as follows: the Air Force proposed 50 T-39's at $39,300,000; 18 C-140's at $29,700,000; 15 F-27's at $23,400,000.

On top of this the Navy wanted 12 Gulf Streams at $14,800,000 plus 10 C-130's at $25,00,000. The total was $132,200,000.

McNamara simply crossed this out of the budget. In addition, the economy-minded Secretary of Defense has ordered the brass hats to travel tourist. This has made some admirals and generals seethe with indignation. Some even travel first class and pay the difference themselves. They can't complain too much, however, for the Secretary of Defense himself travels tourist.

When he takes an overseas hop he doesn't travel in an "administrative" plane but uses a KC-135 jet tanker with three bunks, one on top of the other, average toilet facilities, no soundproofing and only a small galley in which to cook. It costs $200,000 to convert one these planes into the plush type used for executive junkets and the Secretary of Defense says the jet tanker is good enough for him.

Note — Cutting out the "administrative" planes was one of McNamara's solo decisions which retiring Secretary of the Army, Elvis Stahr, complained about. Stahr claimed McNamara made too many decisions on his own. "Somebody has to make 'em," growled the Secretary of Defense. "If I don't make 'em, who will?"

Taylor Advocates Emphasis On Ground Forces

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON—Does President Kennedy's appointment of General Maxwell D. Taylor to be Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff represent a renewed emphasis on ground forces? This question is a vital one now as the far-reaching development of missiles and nuclear weapons seems to be bringing about a stalemate or balance of power so far as major wars are concerned.

One school of thought nowadays assumes that local wars are to be the order of the day and that this phase of American defense policy has been neglected. General Taylor holds that view. He has been intimately identified in recent months with the build-up of forces in Berlin and in dealing with the "guerrilla" warfare problem in Southeast Asia.

There are, however, fundamental differences of opinion here as to what constitutes the safer strategy for the United States. The rivalry between the armed services has by no means been adjourned. The Air Force and the Navy, whose chiefs differed vigorously with General Taylor when he was Chief of Staff of the Army, are bound to resume their lively debate over the way the money provided for national defense shall be spent.

General Taylor, like a good many other men of positive views in the armed services, has been a controversial figure. He voluntarily retired as Chief of Staff of the Army in 1959 after he found himself in a one-to-three position versus the heads of the Navy and the Air Force and the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, who repeatedly sided against him. He felt that President Eisenhower, being an Army man, should have supported his views on building up conventional forces. After retiring, General Taylor wrote a book, "The Uncertain Trumpet," which caused a lot of discussion as he reiterated the views he had unsuccessfully advocated in the meetings of the Joint Chiefs.

Mr. Kennedy was very much impressed with the book and used it as ammunition on the political stump in many campaign speeches. It was the basis on which the Democratic presidential nominee criticized President Eisenhower for having failed to increase and modernize conventional forces, for having relied too much on the "massive deterrent" policy, and for setting budget ceilings on national defense.

When General Taylor was selected as personal adviser to President Kennedy shortly after the Cuban "invasion" fiasco, many high officers in the armed services were a bit perturbed. Some of them felt that, since he was to be at the President's side constantly, it meant that the Joint Chiefs of Staff would be virtually subordinated to General Taylor. For that reason, some of the top officers in the Navy and Air Force said this week that they feel it is much better for General Taylor to have the full responsibility as Chairman of the Joint Chiefs than to be exercising influence on military matters at the White House as a personal assistant to the President.

The comment among various officers in the armed services is that General Taylor was himself not a team player when he was a member of the Joint Chiefs. It is said that he didn't feel bound to support decisions with which he had disagreed. At the same time, some of these same officers recall that General Taylor used to say that a chairman of the Joint Chiefs shouldn't be bossy or attempt to override his associates. There is speculation now whether he will adopt the same view if he encounters differences of opinion among his fellow staff officers.

Congress, of course, and particularly chairmen of the military affairs committees in both houses, will continue to show a sensitiveness to interservice conflicts and differences. General Taylor is no stranger to these committees, and some strong words of praise were spoken in his behalf on Capitol Hill the other day when he was appointed.

Incidentally, General Lyman L. Lemnitzer, who was appointed to succeed General Lauris Norstad at NATO, has passed the voluntary retirement age of 62. His departure will be mandatory next year when he is 64 unless Congress passes a special act to retain him in that post. He is not unfamiliar with NATO, since, as Chief of Staff of the Army, he has had to deal with its problems. Also, in the 1940's he was instrumental in formulating the original plans for the NATO operation.

The big question mark, however, is whether General Taylor's appointment as head of the Joint Chiefs means the beginning of an effort on his part, with the co-operation of Secretary of Defense McNamara and President Kennedy, to centralize control of the armed services. In his book, he advocated that the Joint Chiefs of Staff be dissolved and replaced by a single defense chief of staff and an advisory board, with the service chiefs of staff operating their individual military services.

Inside Washington

ADAMS SET PACE — Probably the most prominent ex-Senator to serve in the House was John Quincy Adams, who was a Senator from 1803 to 1808 and later served in the House from 1831 until his death in 1848 in the Capitol. In between he was President of the United States.

Another well-known American who served first in the Senate and then in the House was Henry Clay, one of the great figures of his age. Clay was a Senator from 1806 to 1807, serving before he was 30 years of age, notwithstanding the constitutional limitation. He was a Senator again from 1810 to 1811 and then ran for the House in the belief membership in that body would aid him more in achieving the Presidency. He served in the House, 1811-14, 1815-21, 1823-25, being signally honored by being chosen Speaker each time. He was an unsuccessful Whig candidate for the White House in 1824, 1832 and 1844. He completed his service in Congress as a Senator, 1831-42 and 1849-52.

More recently, Matthew Neely, West Virginia Democrat, had the unusual distinction of serving first in the House, then the Senate, again the House, and finally tht Senate. During this period he also served as governor. His service in Congress embraced the years 1913-29, 1931-41, 1945-47, 1949-58. He died in office.

A similar record in Congress was held by Theodore E. Burton, Ohio Republican. He served in the House, Senate, House and Senate during the period 1889-1929. He also died in office.

Another well-known former Senator who served in the House was James W. Wadsworth Jr., New York Republican. He was in the Senate from 1915 to 1927. Defeated for re-election, he was subsequently chosen for the House in 1933 and served there with distinction for nine terms.

One former Senator is now serving in the House. He is Rep. Alton A. Lennon, D-N.C., who was in the Senate from 1953 to 1954.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

By Jim Bishop

The flight to Proxima Centauri is off. Definitely. No use bursting into tears, my friends. Just return your tickets to the Fugazy Travel Bureau, or your local psychiatrist, and get your money back. I had thought, when everyone else was buying tickets for the first flight to the moon, or Jupiter, or maybe Mars, that I would find a nice quiet star which no one else could spell.

So I picked Proxima Centauri. It is just around the corner, spacially speaking — only 18.6 light years away. A good place if you like to rough it on a weekend. A place where you could carry a knapsack, a couple of cans of beans, a package of bacon and the juice of one bottle of bourbon and live like a king.

Of course, the space ships aren't ready. Some of our missiles are missing. One of our astronauts, coming in for a landing, almost missed the whole Atlantic Ocean. Everybody counts down, but so few get up. Still, the model T missiles are being refined so that soon we will have citizens traipsing around the moon craters, ready to be mugged in the dark by neuter natives with one eye apiece.

Now I have the word of no less an authority than Dr. Sebastian von Hoerner — who else? — that man may fly around his own little solar system, but he will never get out of the terrestrial backyard. Never. That includes Proxima Centauri, because Prox just so happens to be out of this world.

Maybe von Hoerner is, too, but that's another quantum question. Dr. Sebast, as I like to think of him, is holed up in Heidelberg, Germany, where he dreams up reasons why we can't do this and that. Recently, he wrote an article for Science, in which he pointed out that man may soon snap off his pad to visit the neighboring planets around our sun, but that we will remain prisoners in our own little world and never get out of it.

Well. You should have seen what that did to the morning corn flakes. Dr. Sebast also feels that some of us are megalomaniacs. Science knows that there are millions of suns, and that these suns radiate warmth on billions of planets. Therefore, the good doctor assumes that there must be other sophisticated civilizations and, if we are trying to get into orbit now, others may have it from far-away worlds long ago.

"It would be megalomania," says Dr. Sebast, "to think that we are the one intelligent civilization in the universe. On the contrary, we should assume from our present knowledge that life and intelligence will have developed, with about the same speed as on earth, wherever the proper surroundings and the needed time have been provided."

Why then, have they not flown to us? Because it is impossible. Von Hoerner says that if you can imagine our earth as a single grain of sand, then the sun is a cherry pit three feet away. The nearest star, my very own Proxima Centauri, would be 140 miles distant.

A light year is, roughly, 6 trillions of miles. Prox is almost 112 trillions of miles out. The space experts are thinking of making missiles which will fly at an escape velocity of 25,000 miles per hour. This is pretty fair sped, but if I departed from Cape Canaveral the day I was born, I would be 500,000 years old when I arrived at the nearest star.

And that's only one way. After I arrived — you can bet I'd be pretty tired of all that weightlessness and nothingness — I would be at a hot sun, not a planet. If I wanted to land in a habitable place — you know, one with a grassy picnic grounds and ants in the peanut butter — I would have to fly on for another two million years.

The word for all this is absurd. Nobody in his right mind has two million years to fritter away looking at space. Speaking of space, I'd settle for some closet room around the house. I'm not hard to please. Small minds have small goals.

Von Hoerner says that the only way man can ever escape his environment would be to build a space ship capable of traveling at close to the speed of light — 186,000 miles per second, or, 669,600,000 m.p.h. If we had that kind of a convertible, I could get to the friendly planets beyond Proxima Centauri in about 23 years and, not counting the weekend making passes at the friendly native girls, could be back home in another 23 years.

The doctor says that the engine pushing the space vehicle must not weigh more than 10 paper clips and must supply (for 46 years) 15 million watts of electricity.

Any questions? . . .

Reader's Views Make Doctor Feel Inadequate

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Some days I feel inadequate. "Dear Dr. Van Dellen," writes F. N. from New Rochelle, N. Y. "I'm surprised that you don't know the cause of cancer. There is no doubt it is caused by diseased chickens. Barnyard fowl eat anything that comes their way and do us more harm than we consciously realize."

Everyone is entitled to his opinion but I love to eat chicken and will continue to do so. Our reader was not content to stop with this information and added:

"Just recently I wrote to the mental hygiene department and suggested the use of ice cream as a mental soother and the organization is enthusiastic about its possibilities. I explained to them that mental problems are the equivalent of mental fever, just as physical ailments have fever which present themselves on the thermometer. Food for thought — not found in medical textbooks."

So true — about the textbooks, that is. The term mental fever is rather catching, considering related expressions such as hot under the collar, let off steam, and cool off. F. N. ought to cool off, and not with ice cream.

A New York City reader writes, "On Jan. 31 your article was headed 'Genius and Insanity Have Nothing in Common.' This is a false statement. Obsession with one idea, pursuit, or action is common in insanity. The genius likewise is obsessed, usually in one field, because of talent, interest, or bent."

We could spend the rest of this column arguing with this reader but we suggest he look up the word "obsession." He might find that persons in all walks of life and various degrees of intelligence have obsessions.

I might disagree with the title (which was not mine) by saying geniuses and the insane do have things in common. They have two eyes, shiver when cold, and become hungry when dinner time rolls around.

TOMORROW: Summer food poisoning.

SCALP PSORIASIS

M. M. L. writes: My husband has psoriasis on his scalp, which is very itchy. He washes his hair with mange soap, which seems to help a little. Is there anything we can use to control or cure this condition?

REPLY

There are many different ointments and solution but the majority are messy. Coal tar ointments and ultraviolet are the best combination. Tar sensitizes the skin to ultraviolet, which must be remembered when products containing tar are used on exposed areas during the summer. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on psoriasis.

ANIMAL GALL BLADDERS

S. D. writes: Do animals have a gall bladder?

REPLY

Some do. It is absent in the horse, deer, and rat but is present in cattle, sheep, dogs, cats, and mice. Some species of animals never develop gallstones.

VITAMIN B12 SUPERIOR

L. R. writes: Can pernicious anemia be relieved by diet?

REPLY

Yes, with tons of liver. It is easier to take a shot of vitamin B12 every three or four weeks.

To the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

Try And Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

When veteran newspaper man John Wheeler was a young sprout, he met the great John L. Sullivan, world's heavyweight champion and a man of inordinate vanity. Sullivan reached over and pulled a big cigar out of Wheeler's mouth. He took three or four puffs of it, then handed it back with a grin. "There you are, young feller," he boomed, "and remember I would not do that for every so and so!"

A minister in Evansville had fallen into the habit of placing his sermons on the pulpit about an hour before the church service. One young rascal discovered this habit, and one day, before the congregation convened, he neatly detached the last page from the manuscript.

The minister delivered his sermon in ringing tones, and read the last line of what was now the final page: "So, Adam said to Eve . . ." Searching in vain for the following page, the minister made a mental note to give his secretary what for, cleared his throat nervously, then concluded his sermon weakly, "So, Adam said to Eve—there seems to be a leaf missing!"

If the American Dental Association is on the ball, it will give serious attention to John Fuller's suggested slogan for the tooth-pullers of our nation: "Nothing dentured, nothing gained."

Opening lead: Eight of ♣

In defending against a slam contract, the ace of trumps is usually a potent weapon in the hands of the defenders. However, it proved to be a fatal liability to West in today's hand, when he failed to cash in his trick with sufficient dispatch.

South's determination to bid a slam after his partner's raise to four hearts was distinctly aggressive, and his use of the Blackwood Convention was a sheer waste of time. Even if North turned up with an ace, South simply lacks the assets required for a grand slam undertaking.

West pondered his opening lead at great length. He considered putting down the ace of trumps in order to inspect the terrain, but was reluctant to part with his jewel. He couldn't decide between either of his long suits, and finally compromised by leading the eight of clubs.

When the dummy was spread, everything seemed to hinge on the diamond finesse, but West had taken so long to decide on his opening that declarer was a bit pessimistic about finding the king of diamonds on side. He decided to play around a bit in order to see what would develop.

Since West had opened a high spot in clubs, he appeared to be short in that suit. After putting up the king of clubs from dummy, declarer cashed his high spades next. With nine cards in the suit outstanding, there appeared to be little risk in this maneuver. On the second and third rounds, the remaining clubs were discarded from the dummy. Now, the ace of clubs was played and all hands followed. On the jack of clubs, West discarded a diamond and the dummy trumped.

With the black suits completely stripped out, South led a trump from the dummy and West was in with the blank ace of hearts. Since a spade return would present South with a ruff and sluff, West led back a diamond in the hope that East had the queen. Declarer, however, turned up with that card and, after drawing the remaining trump, he claimed his contract.

Jobless Fathers In West Va. Being Recalled

12,500 Expected Back By Monday

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—State Welfare Commissioner W. Bernard Smith said Thursday state agencies have already started recalling jobless fathers under the state's public works program and the entire 12,500 men are expected to be back on the job Monday.

Smith said the workers would be paid for the month of July though they did little work after the program expired June 30. He said the workers would make up the work hours in August.

President Kennedy Thursday signed a welfare bill extending federal participation in the Aid to Dependent Children of the Unemployed (ADCU) program another five years. It is financed on a 70-10 matching basis with the federal government putting up the largest amount.

Smith said the state has $3 million in matching funds, meaning West Virginia will have $10 million for the program. However, Smith also said the plan would be kept going at full tilt, spending $1.5 million a month.

He said the 1963 Legislature will be probably asked to appropriate funds to continue the plan at full capacity through the 1962-63 fiscal year.

Smith also pointed out that he felt, unless there is a "drastic change for the better in the state's economy, the program would be continued for the full five years of federal participation.

"Until economic conditions improve drastically, West Virginia can't afford not to participate in this program," Smith said.

He said under the new legislation the program would discontinue its association with the Emergency Employment Program and his department would handle its entire administration.

ADCU was hooked up to EEP during the past year in order to make recipients of the grants work for their money. This was started under approval by then Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Abraham Ribicoff. It was legalized by an amendment to the welfarebill.

Sen. Jennings Randolph, D-W. Va., said in Washington:

"It is reassuring to West Virginians to know that the new public law declares that the ADCU community work plan has the sanction of the federal government and that it has been a thoroughly legal operation in West Virginia since its inception July 1, 1961."

He said the amendment takes the state out from under a "cloud of audit exception" at the federal level. HEW auditors made an audit exception to the $11 million spent on the program last fiscal year.

WILL TEACH ART—Harry E. Mandell of LaVale has been employed as an art instructor at Frostburg State Teachers College for the new term starting in September. He formerly taught arts and crafts at Penn Hills Junior High School in Pittsburgh and has been employed at the City Furniture Company in Cumberland. He is married and has two children.

St. George's Church Arranges Outing

MT. SAVAGE — The annual parish outing of St. George's Episcopal Church will be held Sunday in the picnic area at the Celanese pool.

Services will be held at the usual hours, 7:30 and 10 a. m. The church bus will complete its regular run, but not make the return trip; nor will it go to the picnic area.

Members planning to attend the outing are requested to bring their lunch and picnic gear to the church. Cars will provide transportation to and from the Celanese.

Admission cost for swimming will be provided each Church School pupil. In the event of rain, the parish hall will be available for the picnic lunch.

State Board Paves Way For Junior Colleges

Two-Year Branches Get Approval

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—The State Board of Education paved the way Thursday for the creation of two-year branch colleges in West Virginia.

The board adopted a resolution which permits county boards of education, county courts and municipal corporations to join with an approved educational institution in the preparation of plans for the organization of such units.

The board said each plan, which would be submitted to the board for final approval, must give evidence that the proposed branch would have adequate enrollment, financing, physical plant facilities and acceptable standards of organization and operation.

During its meeting, the board also received 1963-64 budget proposals from several colleges and agencies under its jurisdiction and relaxed age requirements for six-year-olds entering first grade.

Spangler Opposes

A. H. Spangler, newly - elected vice president of the board, opposed the branch college resolution, saying it was "ambiguous." He also challenged the use of the "adequate" to qualify enrollment, financing and physical plant requirements.

Spangler said the board should set a minimum enrollment figure. But J. C. Jefferds Jr., who drafted the resolution, said it would be up to the board to judge each plan as it is submitted.

"There's no way we can put up a set of rules that will apply to every situation," Jefferds said.

The new age - limit regulation would permit certain five-year-olds to enter the first grade as long as they reach the age of six by the following Feb. 1.

Rule Relaxed

The board said that at the present time no child may enter the first grade unless he turns six by the following Nov. 1. However, that rule will be relaxed for five-year-olds who are more advanced socially, mentally and physically.

An applicant also must have mental capacity of at least a 6½-year-old, a qualification which would be determined through psychological examinations.

The board received 1963-64 budget proposals from two colleges, the State Department of Education, the Division of Vocational Education and the Romney Deaf and Blind Schools.

Budget proposals for Marshall University, the State Board of Education and six other colleges will be received Friday.

The budget proposals, with this year appropriations in parentheses, included:

State Department of Education $828,130 (634,762); Division of Vocational Education 467,607 (456,407); Romney Deaf and Blind Schools 761,185 (694,039), West Virginia State 1,650,713 (1,358,488), West Liberty State College 1,703,100 (750,667).

Those scheduled for receipt Friday were:

West Virginia Tech 1,172,555 (912,834), Marshall University 3,693,695 (2,800,000) Bluefield State 644,162 (576,794), Concord 1,590,700 (1,079,000), Fairmont State 1,162,232 (921,403), Glenville 822,809 (649,847), Shepherd 836,096 (611,602), State Board of Education 54,430 (49,212).

Pollution Violators To Be Tried

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—Law enforcement against violations of West Virginia's water pollution law by oil and gas well drillers has been stepped up by the State Natural Resources Department.

Resources Director Warden M. Lane said the action would particularly effect Doddridge, Calhoun, Lewis, Gilmer and other central West Virginia Counties. Lane said his department and the division of water resources have seen a steady increase in stream pollution of this type over the past few years.

He said such pollution is usually only of a temporary nature but the situation is being considered as a serious problem in that part of the state because of the number of operations.

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Don't Let Grooming Accidents Spoil Outlook

Your personality is most radiant when your dress and grooming are perfection. "Best" looks and "best" feelings are virtually synonymous. But when a mishap occurs, in spite of careful planning, just put your best face forward. The brilliance of a charming smile overcomes mountains and molehills of embarrassment!

Many grooming casualties which you may consider unavoidable can be outwitted. Such tricks as these are successfully employed by the Powers Girls:

Banish the skidding earring by sliding non-skid tips over the fasteners. Sew snap-in loops into the shoulders of your dresses and blouses to anchor the elusive lingerie strap. Tuck the selvage of long gloves in at the top, to keep gloves from becoming disarranged on your arms. Wear a waistband made to prevent blouses from riding out of skirts.

You'll have fewer runs (spend less for stockings, too) if you file toenails straight across . . . less powder on the shoulders of your dresses if you wear a make-up cape when applying cosmetics . . . less evidence of dandruff if you brush your hair one hundred strokes every day, and shampoo according to dry-scalp requirements.

These are other boosters to personality because they prevent problems: An enveloping apron for the hostess-chef—not as glamorous as the frilly type, but far more spot-defying. At-home clothes that are pretty as well as practical—last year's castoffs will send you scurrying for cover if unannounced callers arrive (it shouldn't happen, but it does). Rainwear that's a costume, not a collection—you might as well enjoy inclement weather, since it makes the flowers grow!

You may not be able to solve every grooming predicament before you find yourself in the middle of it. Still, you can make it so unimportant, by maintaining your composure, as to be hardly noticeable.

Contractors Urge Capable Road Employes

Association Favors Changes

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—There is only one answer to West Virginia's highway right-of-way acquisition problems, according to the West Virginia Contractors Association.

In an editorial published in the July issue of association's official publication, "West Virginia Construction News", the association said the early adoption of a solid merit or civil system for state road employes should be "paramount in overcoming the slipshod and unconventional methods employed by the state in recent years."

The article said that "only through the hiring of completely competent and qualified personnel, can the state ever expect to receive full and true value for each road dollar spent."

"It could very well be that disclosures by Blatnik committee investigators may be just the 'shot in the arm' needed to get a far - reaching and sound merit of civil service movement under way in the state," according to the article.

This same proposal as well as two others, was proposed by a member of the House investigating committee in Washington which recently completed hearings on W. Va.'s highway program. Rep. Jim Wright, D-Tex., also recommended a system of job security and a federal highway training academy.

KEYSER — Color slides depiciting scenic views of the World's Fair in Seattle and the principal cities of Europe were shown last Wednesday night to members of the Soroptimist Club during a picnic outing at the summer cottage of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Umstot on Patterson's Creek.

Seventeen members and 10 guests were present to view the slides of Dr. and Mrs. George Harman taken during their trip to the West Coast and those of the joint installation of officers held at the Shrine Club on June 9. They also viewed scenes taken by Eddie Daskal during his trip to Paris, Vienna, Copenhagen, Lisbon, and portions of Switzerland, Italy, and Spain.

Authorities said the shooting apparently climaxed an argument at the restaurant where Mrs. Cantrell and her husband, Harry Cantrell, had dined earlier in the evening.

Jobless Fathers In West Va. Being Recalled

12,500 Expected Back By Monday

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—State Welfare Commissioner W. Bernard Smith said Thursday state agencies have already started recalling jobless fathers under the state's public works program and the entire 12,500 men are expected to be back on the job Monday.

Smith said the workers would be paid for the month of July though they did little work after the program expired June 30. He said the workers would make up the work hours in August.

President Kennedy Thursday signed a welfare bill extending federal participation in the Aid to Dependent Children of the Unemployed (ADCU) program another five years. It is financed on a 70-10 matching basis with the federal government putting up the largest amount.

Smith said the state has $3 million in matching funds, meaning West Virginia will have $10 million for the program. However, Smith also said the plan would be kept going at full tilt, spending $1.5 million a month.

He said the 1963 Legislature will be probably asked to appropriate funds to continue the plan at full capacity through the 1962-63 fiscal year.

Smith also pointed out that he felt, unless there is a "drastic change for the better in the state's economy, the program would be continued for the full five years of federal participation.

"Until economic conditions improve drastically, West Virginia can't afford not to participate in this program," Smith said.

He said under the new legislation the program would discontinue its association with the Emergency Employment Program and his department would handle its entire administration.

ADCU was hooked up to EEP during the past year in order to make recipients of the grants work for their money. This was started under approval by then Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Abraham Ribicoff. It was legalized by an amendment to the welfarebill.

Sen. Jennings Randolph, D-W. Va., said in Washington:

"It is reassuring to West Virginians to know that the new public law declares that the ADCU community work plan has the sanction of the federal government and that it has been a thoroughly legal operation in West Virginia since its inception July 1, 1961."

He said the amendment takes the state out from under a "cloud of audit exception" at the federal level. HEW auditors made an audit exception to the $11 million spent on the program last fiscal year.

WILL TEACH ART—Harry E. Mandell of LaVale has been employed as an art instructor at Frostburg State Teachers College for the new term starting in September. He formerly taught arts and crafts at Penn Hills Junior High School in Pittsburgh and has been employed at the City Furniture Company in Cumberland. He is married and has two children.

St. George's Church Arranges Outing

MT. SAVAGE — The annual parish outing of St. George's Episcopal Church will be held Sunday in the picnic area at the Celanese pool.

Services will be held at the usual hours, 7:30 and 10 a. m. The church bus will complete its regular run, but not make the return trip; nor will it go to the picnic area.

Members planning to attend the outing are requested to bring their lunch and picnic gear to the church. Cars will provide transportation to and from the Celanese.

Admission cost for swimming will be provided each Church School pupil. In the event of rain, the parish hall will be available for the picnic lunch.

State Board Paves Way For Junior Colleges

Two-Year Branches Get Approval

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—The State Board of Education paved the way Thursday for the creation of two-year branch colleges in West Virginia.

The board adopted a resolution which permits county boards of education, county courts and municipal corporations to join with an approved educational institution in the preparation of plans for the organization of such units.

The board said each plan, which would be submitted to the board for final approval, must give evidence that the proposed branch would have adequate enrollment, financing, physical plant facilities and acceptable standards of organization and operation.

During its meeting, the board also received 1963-64 budget proposals from several colleges and agencies under its jurisdiction and relaxed age requirements for six-year-olds entering first grade.

Spangler Opposes

A. H. Spangler, newly - elected vice president of the board, opposed the branch college resolution, saying it was "ambiguous." He also challenged the use of the "adequate" to qualify enrollment, financing and physical plant requirements.

Spangler said the board should set a minimum enrollment figure. But J. C. Jefferds Jr., who drafted the resolution, said it would be up to the board to judge each plan as it is submitted.

"There's no way we can put up a set of rules that will apply to every situation," Jefferds said.

The new age - limit regulation would permit certain five-year-olds to enter the first grade as long as they reach the age of six by the following Feb. 1.

Rule Relaxed

The board said that at the present time no child may enter the first grade unless he turns six by the following Nov. 1. However, that rule will be relaxed for five-year-olds who are more advanced socially, mentally and physically.

An applicant also must have mental capacity of at least a 6½-year-old, a qualification which would be determined through psychological examinations.

The board received 1963-64 budget proposals from two colleges, the State Department of Education, the Division of Vocational Education and the Romney Deaf and Blind Schools.

Budget proposals for Marshall University, the State Board of Education and six other colleges will be received Friday.

The budget proposals, with this year appropriations in parentheses, included:

State Department of Education $828,130 (634,762); Division of Vocational Education 467,607 (456,407); Romney Deaf and Blind Schools 761,185 (694,039), West Virginia State 1,650,713 (1,358,488), West Liberty State College 1,703,100 (750,667).

Those scheduled for receipt Friday were:

West Virginia Tech 1,172,555 (912,834), Marshall University 3,693,695 (2,800,000) Bluefield State 644,162 (576,794), Concord 1,590,700 (1,079,000), Fairmont State 1,162,232 (921,403), Glenville 822,809 (649,847), Shepherd 836,096 (611,602), State Board of Education 54,430 (49,212).

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Don't Let Grooming Accidents Spoil Outlook

Your personality is most radiant when your dress and grooming are perfection. "Best" looks and "best" feelings are virtually synonymous. But when a mishap occurs, in spite of careful planning, just put your best face forward. The brilliance of a charming smile overcomes mountains and molehills of embarrassment!

Many grooming casualties which you may consider unavoidable can be outwitted. Such tricks as these are successfully employed by the Powers Girls:

Banish the skidding earring by sliding non-skid tips over the fasteners. Sew snap-in loops into the shoulders of your dresses and blouses to anchor the elusive lingerie strap. Tuck the selvage of long gloves in at the top, to keep gloves from becoming disarranged on your arms. Wear a waistband made to prevent blouses from riding out of skirts.

You'll have fewer runs (spend less for stockings, too) if you file toenails straight across . . . less powder on the shoulders of your dresses if you wear a make-up cape when applying cosmetics . . . less evidence of dandruff if you brush your hair one hundred strokes every day, and shampoo according to dry-scalp requirements.

These are other boosters to personality because they prevent problems: An enveloping apron for the hostess-chef—not as glamorous as the frilly type, but far more spot-defying. At-home clothes that are pretty as well as practical—last year's castoffs will send you scurrying for cover if unannounced callers arrive (it shouldn't happen, but it does). Rainwear that's a costume, not a collection—you might as well enjoy inclement weather, since it makes the flowers grow!

You may not be able to solve every grooming predicament before you find yourself in the middle of it. Still, you can make it so unimportant, by maintaining your composure, as to be hardly noticeable.

Contractors Urge Capable Road Employes

Association Favors Changes

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—There is only one answer to West Virginia's highway right-of-way acquisition problems, according to the West Virginia Contractors Association.

In an editorial published in the July issue of association's official publication, "West Virginia Construction News", the association said the early adoption of a solid merit or civil system for state road employes should be "paramount in overcoming the slipshod and unconventional methods employed by the state in recent years."

The article said that "only through the hiring of completely competent and qualified personnel, can the state ever expect to receive full and true value for each road dollar spent."

"It could very well be that disclosures by Blatnik committee investigators may be just the 'shot in the arm' needed to get a far - reaching and sound merit of civil service movement under way in the state," according to the article.

This same proposal as well as two others, was proposed by a member of the House investigating committee in Washington which recently completed hearings on W. Va.'s highway program. Rep. Jim Wright, D-Tex., also recommended a system of job security and a federal highway training academy.

Pollution Violators To Be Tried

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—Law enforcement against violations of West Virginia's water pollution law by oil and gas well drillers has been stepped up by the State Natural Resources Department.

Resources Director Warden M. Lane said the action would particularly effect Doddridge, Calhoun, Lewis, Gilmer and other central West Virginia Counties. Lane said his department and the division of water resources have seen a steady increase in stream pollution of this type over the past few years.

He said such pollution is usually only of a temporary nature but the situation is being considered as a serious problem in that part of the state because of the number of operations.

Cincinnati Whips Pirates, 5-3, For Ninth Consecutive Victory

Jerry Lynch, Coleman Belt 2-Run Homers

Reds Sweep 4-Game Series; Klippstein Victor, Law Loser

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Jerry Lynch and Gordie Coleman bracketed two-run homers Thursday night to pace the Cincinnati Reds to their ninth consecutive victory, a 5-3 decision over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

After Bob Skinner homered for a run off Cincinnati starter John Klippstein in the first inning, Vada Pinson singled and Lynch homered in the bottom of the inning to give the Reds a lead they never lost.

Coleman's homer—his 10th this month—followed a run-producing single by Frank Robinson in the fifth inning for three runs that were needed when Klippstein tired in the late innings.

The Pirates got a run back in the sixth on a single by Skinner and a double by Jim Marshall and knocked out Klippstein in the eighth on a walk and two singles for another run.

But Bill Henry relieved and retired the side in the eighth, then gave up only one hit in the ninth to wrap up the win for Klippstein. Vernon Law, who started for Pittsburgh, was the loser.

The last-place Rotary Club notched its sixth win of the campaign yesterday, handing the defending champion Cumberland Optimists a 5-3 setback in a Hot Stove League encounter at Mason Road. The loss was the 14th for the Optimists this year.

At Penn Avenue last evening, southpaw Quentin Simpson won his initial Hot Stove League victory with a four-hit effort to beat the Lions, 7-5, although he needed relief help from Ralph Miller when the losers tallied five times in the fifth inning.

Woody Dodrill's two-run triple in the fifth inning was the big blow in a five-run explosion for the Outdoor Club. Kenny Green chipped in with a pair of singles for the winners.

Bobby Dick's three-run homer capped the five-run outburst for the Lions as the two teams tallied 10 runs in the fifth inning. Mike Baker had two hits for the losers. The results:

Nationals Add Art Mahaffey

Mathews, Robinson, Williams Join Stars

CINCINNATI (UPI) — The National League, seeking the victory that will at last even the series against the American League, Thursday added three more sluggers and ace Phillies pitcher Art Mahaffey to the squad for the second All-Star game at Chicago next Monday.

Picked as additions to the NL squad were outfielders Frank Robinson of the Cincinnati Reds and Billy Williams of the Chicago Cubs and third baseman Ed Mathews of the Milwaukee Braves.

Mahaffey, fast-balling 6-2 righthander who has won 13 games for the seventh-place Phillies, was picked by NL manager Fred Hutchinson of Cincinnati as the replacement for southpaw Sandy Koufax of the Los Angeles Dodgers. Koufax, strikeout king of the league, has been sidelined with an ailing hand.

The National League, which got off to a bad start years ago when the All-Star games were inaugurated, won the first game this year, 3-1, at Washington, July 9. The NL now has won 15 All-Star games against 16 for the AL, with one tie.

Chicago Beats Washington, 7-1

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Righthander Ray Herbert became the first Chicago White Sox pitcher to win 10 games this season when he twirled a six-hit, 7-1 victory over the Washington Senators Thursday night.

Chicago took sole possession of fifth place from the idle Baltimore Orioles with three two-run flurries off Washington starter Bennie Daniels, who lost his 11th game.

Knudson Leads Canadian Open

Winnipeg Golfer Has 1st Round 67

LAVAL-SUR-LE-LAC, Quebec (UPI) — Canada's newest golf hero, 25-year-old George Knudson, grabbed the first round lead in the Canadian Open golf championship Thursday with a five-under par 67.

Knudson, a tournament winner at Coral Gables, Fla., last December, carded his fine round despite rain and thunder showers which chased several threesomes off the 6,555-yard, par 36-36—72 Laval-sur-le-Lac course.

Knudson's fine round outclassed such well-known touring pros as U. S. Open champion Jack Nicklaus, who had a 35-35 —70, and Ted Kroll, Doug Ford, Al Balding, Bob Rosburg, defending champion Jacky Cupit and Bruce railroad said 13,000 with less than Crampton, all with 71's.

Cincinnati Whips Pirates, 5-3, For Ninth Consecutive Victory

Jerry Lynch, Coleman Belt 2-Run Homers

Reds Sweep 4-Game Series; Klippstein Victor, Law Loser

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Jerry Lynch and Gordie Coleman bracketed two-run homers Thursday night to pace the Cincinnati Reds to their ninth consecutive victory, a 5-3 decision over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

After Bob Skinner homered for a run off Cincinnati starter John Klippstein in the first inning, Vada Pinson singled and Lynch homered in the bottom of the inning to give the Reds a lead they never lost.

Coleman's homer—his 10th this month—followed a run-producing single by Frank Robinson in the fifth inning for three runs that were needed when Klippstein tired in the late innings.

The Pirates got a run back in the sixth on a single by Skinner and a double by Jim Marshall and knocked out Klippstein in the eighth on a walk and two singles for another run.

But Bill Henry relieved and retired the side in the eighth, then gave up only one hit in the ninth to wrap up the win for Klippstein. Vernon Law, who started for Pittsburgh, was the loser.

Nationals Add Art Mahaffey

Mathews, Robinson, Williams Join Stars

CINCINNATI (UPI) — The National League, seeking the victory that will at last even the series against the American League, Thursday added three more sluggers and ace Phillies pitcher Art Mahaffey to the squad for the second All-Star game at Chicago next Monday.

Picked as additions to the NL squad were outfielders Frank Robinson of the Cincinnati Reds and Billy Williams of the Chicago Cubs and third baseman Ed Mathews of the Milwaukee Braves.

Mahaffey, fast-balling 6-2 right-hander who has won 13 games for the seventh-place Phillies, was picked by NL manager Fred Hutchinson of Cincinnati as the replacement for southpaw Sandy Koufax of the Los Angeles Dodgers. Koufax, strikeout king of the league, has been sidelined with an ailing hand.

The National League, which got off to a bad start years ago when the All-Star games were inaugurated, won the first game this year, 3-1, at Washington, July 9. The NL now has won 15 All-Star games against 16 for the AL, with one tie.

Chicago Beats Washington, 7-1

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Right-hander Ray Herbert became the first Chicago White Sox pitcher to win 10 games this season when he twirled a six-hit, 7-1 victory over the Washington Senators Thursday night.

Chicago took sole possession of fifth place from the idle Baltimore Orioles with three two-run flurries off Washington starter Bennie Daniels, who lost his 11th game.

Knudson Leads Canadian Open

Winnipeg Golfer Has 1st Round 67

LAVAL-SUR-LE-LAC, Quebec (UPI) — Canada's newest golf hero, 25-year-old George Knudson, grabbed the first round lead in the Canadian Open golf championship Thursday with a five-under par 67.

The slender, bespectacled Winnipeg native, who said he "was playing almost super golf," took a two-stroke lead over four American pros — Don Fairfield, Bobby Brue, George Bayer and Ron Thomas.

Knudson, a tournament winner at Coral Gables, Fla., last December, carded his fine round despite rain and thunder showers which chased several threesomes off the 6,555-yard, par 36-36—72 Laval-sur-le-Lac course.

Knudson's fine round outclassed such well-known touring pros as U. S. Open champion Jack Nicklaus, who had a 35-35 —70, and Ted Kroll, Doug Ford, Al Balding, Bob Rosburg, defending champion Jacky Cupit and Bruce railroad said 13,000 with less than Crampton, all with 71's.

Spahn Defeats New York, 6-1

Passes Grove Whiff Mark In 10th Win

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Milwaukee southpaw Warren Spahn posted his 10th victory of the season and moved up among baseball's all-time strikeout leaders Thursday as the Braves handed the hapless New York Mets their 11th straight defeat 6-1 in completing a sweep of a three-game series.

The 41-year-old Spahn struck out five, boosting his career total to 2,274 as he moved past Lefty Grove into seventh place on the all-time list. Grove, a member of the Hall of Fame, had 2,271.

Spahn also hit his first homer of the season, boosting his lifetime total to 31, a National League record for pitchers. He lost a bid for his 56th shutout in the eighth when Jim Hickman singled with two out and scored on Marv Throneberry's double to right center.

Hank Aaron cracked his 27th homer for Milwaukee's first run in the second in launching the Braves to their sixth straight triumph, the club's longest winning streak of the season.

Halas refused to name the players because "this is the first time."

Halas announced the fines as the Bears, veterans and rookies, ran through a 90-minute workout Thursday as a follow-up to the squad's scrimmage here Wednesday with the college all-stars. The Bears outscored the all-stars 24-7.

After the May 10 cutdown date, the Yankees had four rookies on their roster — shortstops Tom Tresh and Phil Linz, outfielder-first baseman Joe Pepitone and pitcher Jim Bouton.

Dapper Dan Little League All-Stars Clash Tomorrow

The annual Dapper Dan Little League All-Star game will be held Saturday at 6:30 p.m. at Penn Avenue Field. The Dapper League All-Stars will play the Dan League All-Stars in a 9 inning game.

Each of the 16 teams' managers have selected three players to represent their team. The head team managers of each All-Star team chose an additional three players to round out the squad to 27 players. Each player will play three innings in the game. Howard Northcraft and Pete Deremer, co-managers, of last year's Dapper Division Champions, the Phillies, will manage the Dapper Division All-Stars. Oscar Leasure, manager of last season's champions in the Dan Division the Indians, will manage the Dan Division All-Stars, the other team managers will assist.

The All-Star players are asked to report to the field at 5:30 for a pre-game practice session.

A short program will be held prior to the start of the game.

Tickets may be secured from any player on a Little League team. The teams will receive awards for selling the most tickets. Proceeds from the game will be used to finance the operation of the league for this season.

Snyder's Grocery Wins In 10th, 6-3

Rallying for three runs in the top of the tenth inning, Snyder's Grocery defeated Carling's Black Label in a Rec Softball League game yesterday at Naval Reserve Field by the score of 6-3 to give Bill Kenney his 11th pitching triumph of the season.

The win was the 11th against eight losses for the Grocers. Black Label is 7-2.

Joe DiNicola accounted for three of Snyder's 11 hits — a triple and two doubles — and Abe belted a round-tripper. Chuck Weatherholt socked a triple and Steckman rapped a double for the losers. Score:

Dapper Dan Little League All-Stars Clash Tomorrow

The annual Dapper Dan Little League All-Star game will be held Saturday at 6:30 p.m. at Penn Avenue Field. The Dapper League All-Stars will play the Dan League All-Stars in a 9 inning game.

Each of the 16 teams' managers have selected three players to represent their team. The head team managers of each All-Star team chose an additional three players to round out the squad to 27 players. Each player will play three innings in the game. Howard Northcraft and Pete Deremer, co-managers, of last year's Dapper Division Champions, the Phillies, will manage the Dapper Division All-Stars. Oscar Leasure, manager of last season's champions in the Dan Division the Indians, will manage the Dan Division All-Stars, the other team managers will assist.

The All-Star players are asked to report to the field at 5:30 for a pre-game practice session.

A short program will be held prior to the start of the game.

Tickets may be secured from any player on a Little League team. The teams will receive awards for selling the most tickets. Proceeds from the game will be used to finance the operation of the league for this season.

Stock Market Posts Good Advance In Light Trading

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stocks scored their biggest gain in 12 sessions and finished at their highs Thursday, but trading remained too light to indicate the start of a new strong rallying phase.

Dow - Jones industrials picked up 4.94, rails rose 0.26 and utilities climbed 1.24, handing the 65 stock composite aerage a gain of ¾ of 1 per cent in terms of total market value.

The inclusive 500 stock index compiled by Standard & Poor's Corp. showed a gain of 0.31 and of the 1,211 issues traded, 622 advanced and 352 declined. Two issues reached highs for the year, nine new lows. Trading amounted to 2,790,000 shares against 2,910,000 on Wednesday.

Most insiders are still predicting a narrow and quiet market until mid-August when a decision on a tax cut proposal is due from the President, but meanwhile many breathed a sigh a relief that Bethlehem Steel retained its usual quarterly dividend even though earnings for the period failed to cover the payment. The stock rose ⅝ and U.S. Steel ¾ just before the announcement. Other steels also moved ahead, Youngstown rising 2¼.

Stock Market Posts Good Advance In Light Trading

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stocks scored their biggest gain in 12 sessions and finished at their highs Thursday, but trading remained too light to indicate the start of a new strong rallying phase.

Dow - Jones industrials picked up 4.94, rails rose 0.26 and utilities climbed 1.24, handing the 65 stock composite aerage a gain of ¾ of 1 per cent in terms of total market value.

The inclusive 500 stock index compiled by Standard & Poor's Corp. showed a gain of 0.31 and of the 1,211 issues traded, 622 advanced and 352 declined. Two issues reached highs for the year, nine new lows. Trading amounted to 2,790,000 shares against 2,910,000 on Wednesday.

Most insiders are still predicting a narrow and quiet market until mid-August when a decision on a tax cut proposal is due from the President, but meanwhile many breathed a sigh a relief that Bethlehem Steel retained its usual quarterly dividend even though earnings for the period failed to cover the payment. The stock rose ⅝ and U.S. Steel ¾ just before the announcement. Other steels also moved ahead, Youngstown rising 2¼.

Cards Of Thanks

We wish to express our sincere thanks and appreciation to all our friends, neighbors and relatives who were so kind to us during our recent bereavement, the death of our beloved husband and father, Samuel K. Brown. We especially thank Rev. Wm. Balderson for his comforting words, those who sent flowers, the pallbearers, those who donated the use of cars for the funeral and all others who in any manner rendered assistance. To all we are indeed grateful.

Cards Of Thanks

We wish to express our sincere thanks and appreciation to all our friends, neighbors and relatives who were so kind to us during our recent bereavement, the death of our beloved husband and father, Samuel K. Brown. We especially thank Rev. Wm. Balderson for his comforting words, those who sent flowers, the pallbearers, those who donated the use of cars for the funeral and all others who in any manner rendered assistance. To all we are indeed grateful.

Defense Lawyer Claims Police Mistreatment

Blackburn Murder Trial Continues

BEL AIR, Md. (AP)—The attorney for Earl L. Blackburn, charged in the fatal shooting and robbery of a gas station attendant, attempted to show Thursday that his client was mistreated by police.

A. Freeborn Brown, defense attorney, determined during cross-examination of police witnesses that Blackburn, 28, was questioned from 3 o'clock one morning until 12 midnight the next night without a break.

Cpl. William Seekford and Trooper Robert W. Wellman also were cross-examined about a steel or concrete bed the defense claims Blackburn was forced to sleep on after his arrest.

Willis Snider, 38, the robbery and slaying victim, was shot last March 4 by two gunmen after he had been ordered to kneel and count to 50. A total of $70 was taken in the robbery.

Frederick M. Mefford was convicted July 13 of first degree murder in the slaying of Snider, the father of five.

During Mefford's five-day trial, police testified he confessed his part in the robbert of the U.S. 40 gas station but denied shooting Snider.

Sentencing of Mefford was delayed until after the Blackburn trial. The state, which is expected to call Mefford as a witness, is asking the death penalty for both men.

Lobbyists Boss State House, Small Declares

Candidate Sees 'Punch & Judy Show'

ROCKVILLE, Md. (AP)—Frank Small Jr., Republican candidate for governor, said Thursday night the chief executive's office has been controlled by lobbyists and bosses under Democratic Gov. J. Millard Tawes.

"We have seen the governor's office become a vacuum into which the lobbyists and the big city bosses have rushed to become the real controllers of the state's destiny," Small said in prepared remarks at a convention of Montgomery County Republicans.

Small specifically mentioned George Hocker, a representative of brewers. The Republican candidate noted that Hocker presently is accompanying Gov. Tawes on a Caribbean cruise.

Small claimed that Hocker "has the full run of the State House. His word has carried as much weight as the word of the governor."

Small described Tawes' term as "four years of disgraceful complacency."

Maryland's potential, he went on, has "been callously ignored and neglected out of deference to selfish special interest groups who have dominated our legislature and have operated the Statehouse like some sinister Punch-and-Judy show."

Edward T. Miller, the Republican candidate for U.S. Senator, in his prepared address to the convention jumped on Democrats for opposing what he said were reasonable civil rights proposals.

As U.S. Representative for 12 years from the Eastern Shore, Miller said, his beliefs had "always been directed toward fair and equal treatment for every citizen as guaranteed by the constitution.

"If elected to the U.S. Senate, I will continue to promote the rights of every man, woman and child, regardless of race, creed or color."

Miller criticized 30 Democratic Senators for voting against amendments offered last week by Republicans to the budget for the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

One amendment, he said, would provide that no federal funds be granted to hospitals which practiced a policy of racial discrimination.

Another would bar federal funds to any segregated school system.

Miller said the Democratic Senators, in voting against the amendments, voted "in effect for continued segregation in federally-supported hospitals . . . "

The county convention was called to nominate four more Republican candidates for the Maryland House of Delegates. Montgomery's delegation was increased from six to 10 through reapportionment passed the legislature in May.

Car Dealers Reminded Of License Law

Magistrate Warns Of Stiff Penalty

Magistrate Paul W. Barnett yesterday issued a stern warning to used car dealers in the area that they must comply with the motor vehicle law regarding the issuing of temporary license plates.

Magistrate Barnett made the statement during a hearing yesterday afternoon in Trial Magistrate Court in which a local used car dealer was charged with failing to notify the Department of Motor Vehicles that he had issued several sets of temporary license tags.

The magistrate fined the used car dealer $20, but pointed out that the penalty could have been a fine up to $1,000 plus a year in jail for each violation.

Tfc. Richard Alderton testified yesterday he found four copies of forms at the used car dealer's office which should have been sent to the DMV on the day the temporary tags were issued to the persons who purchased the cars and received the tags.

Magistrate Barnett told the dealer he must send a copy of the temporary license and registration to the DMV on the day the tags are issued, regardless of whether the purchaser resides in Maryland or some other state.

Magistrate Barnett said he had a similar case last week in which a used car dealer was charged with six violations of the law. He urged all dealers to comply with the motor vehicle law since those convicted face a heavy fine and possibly a jail sentence.

Pence Invited To Conference On Fitness

Set For Monday In Washington

Robert E. Pence, Allegany County's supervisor of physical education, has accepted an invitation to attend a conference in Washington Monday called by the President's Council on Youth Fitness.

The invitation for Allegany County to send a representative was contained in a telegram to Superintendent of Schools Ralph R. Webster. The dispatch of that telegram July 13 was one of the last acts of Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Abraham A. Ribicoff. Mr. Ribicoff had submitted his resignation the previous day to campaign for the United States Senate from Connecticut.

Significant progress was made last year in improving school physical fitness programs. However, the leaders of Monday's conference believe much more needs to be done. This conference will bring together city and county directors of health, physical education and recreation.

Speakers will include Anthony J. Celebrezze, the new secretary of health, education and welfare; Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy, U. S. Commissioner of Education Sterling M. McMurrin and Charles B. "Bud" Wilkinson, consultant to the President of Youth Fitness.

The purpose of this meeting is to review results of youth fitness efforts during the past school year and to plan for further cooperative action. New materials being made available by the council also will be discussed.

Mountain City Merchants Will Greet Students

The association sponsors the program to welcome Frostburg State Teachers College students. Plans include a street dance, entertainment, refreshments, free movies and prizes for the students.

City and college officials will participate in the program, which gets under way at 7 p. m. when the Arion Band will form in parking lot at Lowndes Hall and march to Martin's parking lot where the festivities will be held.

Between 500 and 600 students are expected to participate. Frostburg stores will hold registration for gifts for the student on Friday and Saturday preceding the program.

S&L Depositors To Get Chance To Air Views

Allegany County depositors and shareholders of Family Savings and Home Loan Association are being notified that they have until September 17 to decide if they want to be heard on the disposition of funds now in the hands of a receiver.

Judge James Pugh, who has been hearing the case in Rockville Circuit Court, has issued an order instructing Saul I. Stern, receiver of the company's accounts, to give notice to all depositors, share and stockholders of the opportunity to present their views.

Notices are to be placed in newspapers with general circulation in each county where the company had an office. After September 17, the proceedings to determine the distribution of the funds will continue.

The order issued by Judge Pugh follows a plea made last month by Manuel M. Weinberg and David S. Weinberg, attorneys for the Christmas Club holders.

Christmas Club account holders are attempting to get priority over other depositors and shareholders in the distribution of the funds.

Family Savings had a branch office on North Liberty Street and was patronized by many local residents before it was ordered closed last year.

1880 Documents Found As Building Is Razed

By CHARLES H. KELLY
News Staff Writer

A memo dated November 6, 1880, written on stationery of the old Cumberland and Pennsylvania Railroad, and a Cumberland Post Office Register dated February 1, 1881 are among the items uncovered thus far in the razing of a two-story brick building at 116 South Mechanic Street.

The razing project which began earlier this week is in conjunction with the extension of the vehicle maneuvering area at the rear of the Post Office.

For a number of years Harbaugh's Book Shop was located at the site. The building at one time was apparently a storage building for railroad baggage being hauled to and from Cumberland.

Mr. Burwell inquired for a "statement of all freight rates both regular and special that you are using at present."

The Post Office Register was that of Henry J. Johnson, who was postmaster in 1881. The register included office hours for letter delivery, sale of stamps and money order business.

It also noted that money orders could be sent to points in the United States, Canada, Great Britain, Germany, Sweden, Italy and France.

No Stenographer; Zoning Appeal Hearing Deferred

Inability to obtain services of a stenographer to make an official record of the proceedings forced the Allegany County Board of Appeals yesterday afternoon to postpone its public hearing on the application of James M. Sacco.

Mr. Sacco, who lives in Sand Patch, Pa., had applied for permission to establish a business for the storage and dismantling of used cars and sale of new parts in a residence district. The site is on the south side of Dutch Hollow Road about 800 feet west of Bald Knob Road, in Election District 13, Mt. Savage.

About 15 persons had congregated for the hearing including Edward J. Ryan, Mr. Sacco's attorney. Two of the three board members, Everett Partridge and Wilbur Johnson, were present. However, Robert B. Thomas, the court stenographer who ordinarily takes the record at the board's hearings, was busy taking testimony in Allegany County Circuit Court. Several other prospects were tried but without success.

C. Lee Renaud, the county planning director, took the names of all present and said he would notify them of the new date for the hearing. Generally they are held on Thursday afternoons.

Damage Suit Trial Resumes This Morning

21 Witnesses Heard In Day

Although some 21 witnesses paraded to the stand in Allegany County Circuit Court yesterday, the complainants still had at least one more to be heard when Chief Judge Morgan C. Harris recessed the trial for damages at 4 p. m. until 9:15 a. m. today.

In the case, moved here June 7 from Washington County Circuit Court, Dr. Gordon A. Lewis, Hagerstown dentist, and his wife, Mrs. Lenora V. Lewis, are seeking damages from the Maryland Casualty Company for damage which allegedly occurred to their home in the Fountain Head Heights section near Hagerstown during blasting operations while the Mack Truck plant was being constructed.

The next-to-last witness called yesterday by the complainants was Edward W. Cochran, a Hagerstown insurance agent. Mr. Cochran testified that Dr. Lewis had obtained a policy from him written on the Maryland Casualty Company which covered explosion damage to his house.

Although Mr. Cochran said he recommended payment of the claim to Dr. and Mrs. Lewis, the Maryland Casualty Company declined to make payment.

The final witness, who was on the stand about an hour including a lengthy period of cross-examination, was Ralph Donnelly, a civil engineer from Hancock, who investigated the damage to the Lewis home for an insurance adjuster.

Mr. Donnelly testified that there were cracks in the plaster in practically every room and he said they were caused by concussion. The cracking occurred around the joints, he said. He acknowledged under cross-examination that the Lewis house was not damaged structurally. He called most of the damage superficial, involving primarily finish and appearances.

The civil engineer estimated that the Lewis home was located 3,000 to 4,000 feet from the Mack plant site. He figured that there probably are several hundred homes within 4,000 feet of the Mack plant site.

Attorneys for Dr. and Mrs. Lewis are Ernest V. Wachs, Hagerstown, and Simon F. Reilly, Cumberland. Defense attorneys are Edward W. Cooey, Hagerstown, and C. William Gilchrist, Cumberland.

Okey Michael, former mayor of Westernport, is foreman of the jury of nine men and three women impaneled to hear the case. The trial is expected to end today.

A memo dated November 6, 1880, written on stationery of the old Cumberland and Pennsylvania Railroad, and a Cumberland Post Office Register dated February 1, 1881 are among the items uncovered thus far in the razing of a two-story brick building at 116 South Mechanic Street.

The razing project which began earlier this week is in conjunction with the extension of the vehicle maneuvering area at the rear of the Post Office.

For a number of years Harbaugh's Book Shop was located at the site. The building at one time was apparently a storage building for railroad baggage being hauled to and from Cumberland.

Mr. Burwell inquired for a "statement of all freight rates both regular and special that you are using at present."

The Post Office Register was that of Henry J. Johnson, who was postmaster in 1881. The register included office hours for letter delivery, sale of stamps and money order business.

It also noted that money orders could be sent to points in the United States, Canada, Great Britain, Germany, Sweden, Italy and France.

Damage Suit Trial Resumes This Morning

21 Witnesses Heard In Day

Although some 21 witnesses paraded to the stand in Allegany County Circuit Court yesterday, the complainants still had at least one more to be heard when Chief Judge Morgan C. Harris recessed the trial for damages at 4 p. m. until 9:15 a. m. today.

In the case, moved here June 7 from Washington County Circuit Court, Dr. Gordon A. Lewis, Hagerstown dentist, and his wife, Mrs. Lenora V. Lewis, are seeking damages from the Maryland Casualty Company for damage which allegedly occurred to their home in the Fountain Head Heights section near Hagerstown during blasting operations while the Mack Truck plant was being constructed.

The next-to-last witness called yesterday by the complainants was Edward W. Cochran, a Hagerstown insurance agent. Mr. Cochran testified that Dr. Lewis had obtained a policy from him written on the Maryland Casualty Company which covered explosion damage to his house.

Although Mr. Cochran said he recommended payment of the claim to Dr. and Mrs. Lewis, the Maryland Casualty Company declined to make payment.

The final witness, who was on the stand about an hour including a lengthy period of cross-examination, was Ralph Donnelly, a civil engineer from Hancock, who investigated the damage to the Lewis home for an insurance adjuster.

Mr. Donnelly testified that there were cracks in the plaster in practically every room and he said they were caused by concussion. The cracking occurred around the joints, he said. He acknowledged under cross-examination that the Lewis house was not damaged structurally. He called most of the damage superficial, involving primarily finish and appearances.

The civil engineer estimated that the Lewis home was located 3,000 to 4,000 feet from the Mack plant site. He figured that there probably are several hundred homes within 4,000 feet of the Mack plant site.

Attorneys for Dr. and Mrs. Lewis are Ernest V. Wachs, Hagerstown, and Simon F. Reilly, Cumberland. Defense attorneys are Edward W. Cooey, Hagerstown, and C. William Gilchrist, Cumberland.

Okey Michael, former mayor of Westernport, is foreman of the jury of nine men and three women impaneled to hear the case. The trial is expected to end today.

Some 300 persons attended the annual intra-city pet show sponsored by the Recreation Department last night at the tennis courts in Constitution Park. Entries by the 14 city playgrounds included several breeds of dogs and cats; alligators, rabbits, hens and chicks, a chameleon, and even a ghost shrimp.

Mrs. Eva Hogan, playground director, was mistress of ceremonies. Cash prizes in five categories were presented to winners by Mrs. Florence Finan of the Allegany County Animal Welfare Society.

Winners in the event for largest pets were Trina Donahoe, Mapleside, first; Joe Blacker, Virginia Avenue, second, and Joe Corbin, Fort Cumberland; smallest, Tim Thomas, Johnson Heights; first, Brad Grimm, Mount Royal, second, and Gary Hoffman, Penn Avenue, third.

S&L Depositors To Get Chance To Air Views

Allegany County depositors and shareholders of Family Savings and Home Loan Association are being notified that they have until September 17 to decide if they want to be heard on the disposition of funds now in the hands of a receiver.

Judge James Pugh, who has been hearing the case in Rockville Circuit Court, has issued an order instructing Saul I. Stern, receiver of the company's accounts, to give notice to all depositors, share and stockholders of the opportunity to present their views.

Notices are to be placed in newspapers with general circulation in each county where the company had an office. After September 17, the proceedings to determine the distribution of the funds will continue.

The order issued by Judge Pugh follows a plea made last month by Manuel M. Weinberg and David S. Weinberg, attorneys for the Christmas Club holders.

Christmas Club account holders are attempting to get priority over other depositors and shareholders in the distribution of the funds.

Family Savings had a branch office on North Liberty Street and was patronized by many local residents before it was ordered closed last year.

Rev. Emerick To Speak At Park Service

Rev. Louis L. Emerick, pastor of Trinity Methodist Church, will be the guest speaker at vesper services Sunday evening in Constitution Park.

His subject will be "I Am Not Ashamed of the Gospel of Christ."

Rev. George S. Widmyer, pastor of Ridgeley-Potomac Park Evangelical United Brethren Churches, will conduct the services and lead the scripture reading and the evening prayer period.

George Ott, a layman of the Ridgeley EUB Church, will lead the singing for the service, and Kay Baker, church organist at Ridgeley EUB Church, will be organist for the service.

The service, which is being sponsored by the Greater Cumberland Ministerial Association, will be held at Kingsley Methodist Church on Williams Street in the event of rain.

No Stenographer; Zoning Appeal Hearing Deferred

Inability to obtain services of a stenographer to make an official record of the proceedings forced the Allegany County Board of Appeals yesterday afternoon to postpone its public hearing on the application of James M. Sacco.

Mr. Sacco, who lives in Sand Patch, Pa., had applied for permission to establish a business for the storage and dismantling of used cars and sale of new parts in a residence district. The site is on the south side of Dutch Hollow Road about 800 feet west of Bald Knob Road, in Election District 13, Mt. Savage.

About 15 persons had congregated for the hearing including Edward J. Ryan, Mr. Sacco's attorney. Two of the three board members, Everett Partridge and Wilbur Johnson, were present. However, Robert B. Thomas, the court stenographer who ordinarily takes the record at the board's hearings, was busy taking testimony in Allegany County Circuit Court. Several other prospects were tried but without success.

C. Lee Renaud, the county planning director, took the names of all present and said he would notify them of the new date for the hearing. Generally they are held on Thursday afternoons.
